On our end sheet: An aerial view of Classical High School during the autumn. While the trees changed color, a change in education was evolving inside the school.

The Auditorium Mural, "The Light of Education," has inspired the student body since 1910 when it was painted by Robert Reid.

FOREWORD

Emphasis in current curriculum development both in secondary and higher education reflects an appeal among decision makers for that which is innovative. New curriculums stress self-learning and independent thought. School administrators are experimenting in methods to free the teacher from clerical chores and to put him, instead, in the role of "doctor" for his pupils.

We begin to see evidence of this philosophy at work in new institutions of higher learning now emerging. These institutions offer curriculums presently dubbed "experimental," but give expectations of early fulfillment of an educational dream. There is hope this dream will become reality when innovative methods presently being tested are accepted as the standard teaching pattern for the future.

And so, the yearbook staff of the Class of 1971 at Classical High School, aware and part of the many influencing forces among forward-looking faculty and administrative leaders striving to give new direction to the teaching process, dedicates this yearbook to the general theme of "Innovation," applauding these efforts as the key to education for the future.

While experimental curriculums give promise for the future of education, at Classical High School innovative teaching methods have been a daily experience for Class of 1971 members from their beginning days as freshman. Few other public high schools in the nation have been more progressive in areas of innovation than Classical. Its forward-looking faculty has related the need for independent study to subjects relevant both to the outside community and the need for college preparedness.

During our growing years at Classical, we have witnessed a great evolution in our city. The changing city's complexion seems to mirror the maturing Classical student. While the city's new face guarantees future preparedness, a Classical education assures the student he will enter the college of his choice with confidence.

The fact that the level of faculty and student competency is held in highest esteem by college entrance examiners is only one important indicator of the quality of teaching at Classical. The student at Classical has been oriented to be curious, accurate, studious, courteous, and perhaps most important, to become involved.

Involvement is encouraged both in internal and external facets of the students' total environment. Thus, while the Classical student may be stimulated because of personal preference to participate in one or more of the myriad of extracurricular activities within the school, he also may become deeply involved in such external activities as helping in voter registration drives, serving as a hospital volunteer, or bringing a total commitment toward efforts for racial harmony.

At Classical, this involvement broadens the entire spectrum of learning for the student. It adds a new dimension to the process of preparedness for college. And, after all, that's what Classical High School is all about.

Teachers always aware of student needs.

Miss Teresa Boylan

Advisor to the Blue and White yearbook staff for twenty-two years, Miss Boylan's personal commitment to journalistic excellence and her dedication to student involvement and responsibility have provided a rewarding experience for all who shared in yearbook production. In a sense, we may say that this book is dedicated to her, for she realized and practiced innovative ideas both in her yearbooks and in areas of education. Because of her love for travel and awareness of the world about her, Miss Boylan brought to her Spanish and English classes a storehouse of information that textbooks simply could never provide. Miss Boylan undertook each school activity with enthusiasm, vigor, and now continues her involvement with an active retirement where she participates in a myriad of social activities.

Mr. Robert Wessman

Last May, the Classical faculty and student body was deeply saddened by the loss of Mr. Robert Wessman. A Classical graduate of the class of 1935, he returned in 1957 as a mathematics teacher, a position he held for thirteen years. He became head of the Math Department, was co-founder of Culture Vultures, advisor to Mathletes, and active in the creation of "People's Park." He was quick to respond to the needs of others. As a teacher, he was able to show others much of the beauty in their daily lives and surroundings. A man of great insight, his advice was sought and heeded by many.

Perhaps the man who can enlarge our vision, the man who can inspire us to what is in us, is the real teacher. He was such a man. He was a teacher first, a math teacher second.

And so, Robert F. Wessman, friend, teacher, humanitarian, lover of learning, inspirer, believer, raconteur, setter of good examples, creative craftsman, art enthusiast, retriever of reclaimable goods, complete human being, we shall miss you, though you be with us still. Let us not be sad that you have passed away; let us give thanks that we have known you.

ADMINISTRATION

SCIENCE MUSEUM OBSERVATORY

Scheduled to be opened to the public by mid-1971, the new twenty-inch reflecting telescope being built by the Springfield Stars Club will have a great effect on the outside community and on Classical graduates. Once opened, the public will gaze into the heavens, seeking clues to the secrets of the universe. The twenty-inch mirror was one of six poured from the same glass which was used in the 200-inch Mt. Palomar Telescope, the world's largest. The new observatory portrays a renewed inquisitiveness into the unknown. We look into the galaxies, seeking to find answers to age-old questions. Mr. Sullivan, Richard Vercellone, Sanford Frank, and Mr. Lynch explore the heavens together. While the astronomer looks to new horizons, Classical's forward-looking faculty seeks new methods for educational relevance.

School administrators serve as

Mr. Raymond J. Montagna, principal of Classical, is one of the driving forces behind the high scholastic achievements characteristic of Classical students. Recognition for both scholastic and extracurricular sports achievements comes readily from Mr. Montagna, who, at many times during the year, holds special assemblies for such occasions. This year's seniors have a broad senior privilege policy as the result of Mr. Montagna's always progressive thinking.

guides in every phase of student life

Mr. Russell Peterson, assistant principal, spent the first half of the year as adviser to the Student Government. Among his duties as assistant principal are arranging and rearranging class schedules, compiling the honor roll, and making certain that school testing goes successfully.

Mr. John Sweeney is completing his first year at Classical. As an assistant principal, his tasks are maintaining discipline and attendance.

Counselors encourage the

As all counselors are, Miss Mary Corcoran is constantly busy with her students. Her time is divided between visiting campuses and admissions officers and her work at Classical. Miss Corcoran's goal is "assisting students in formulating and fulfilling realistic goals." Well equipped for her task, Miss Corcoran attended Westfield State College and Springfield College. She has done advanced study at the University of Michigan, Columbia University, and Boston University. Travel and the theatre consume her free time.

Managing the school store is just one of Mr. Raymond Marr's duties besides counseling. As a counselor, he also attends the many college conferences. Mr. Marr attended the University of Massachusetts, Westfield State College, and is currently enrolled at University of Massachusetts Graduate School. His limited spare time is taken up by his family, skiing, and officiating at soccer and lacrosse games.

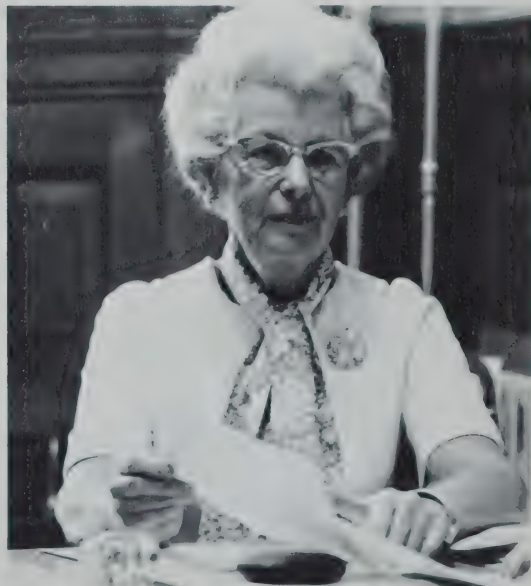

pursuit of a strong scholastic program

The man in charge of Student Treasury, Mr. Baron McDuffee enjoys woodworking, gardening, and working with antique cars. For five years Mr. McDuffee has been counseling Classical students and aiding them in their college choices. Mr. McDuffee attended Fitchburg State College, has his degree in counseling from the University of New York at Buffalo, and a certificate of advanced study from the University of Connecticut.

As adviser to the Student Court and Junior Class, Mrs. Betty Moody finds herself deeply involved with all classes of the school. Counseling is but a part of her varied activities at Classical. Mrs. Moody graduated from Southern University and the University of Massachusetts, with further study at the University of California at Berkeley and Westfield State College. Bowling and traveling are her enjoyable spare time activities.

A very distinguished woman, Mrs. Margaret Ramos appeared in the Who's Who of American Women. Her counselees, juniors and seniors, find her always ready to listen, despite her very busy schedule. Mrs. Ramos attended Bates College, Columbia University, University of Massachusetts, University of Connecticut, Springfield College, Northeastern University, and American International College. Her free time is spent painting, gardening, golfing, playing bridge, church-school teaching, and interior decorating.

Our secretarial staff keeps

Mrs. Mary Kopy listens to a student give his tardy excuse. She is in charge of early dismissal notes.

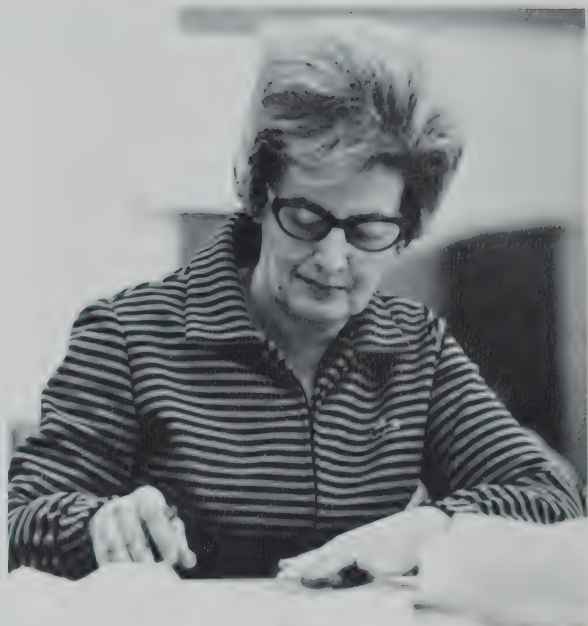

Mrs. Rose Rubino, chief secretary of the main office, is responsible for organizing transcripts for seniors. She is also in charge of ordering supplies, equipment, and books.

A vital member of the school staff, Mrs. Mary Sheehan aids Classical by issuing the daily bulletin, selling bus tickets, calling absentees, and lending bus badges.

the school running smoothly

Mrs. Vi Creanza is a teacher's aide. Among her duties are typing tests, correcting papers, and running the copying machine.

New to Classical this year, Miss Dorothy Healy aids in gathering and mailing college applications for seniors.

A secretary in the guidance office, Mrs. Carol Sengle takes phone calls, makes counselor appointments, and aids students in filling out college applications.

Classical is more than good

Classical's library is run under the very competent hand of Miss Isabelle Brown. Miss Brown obtained two degrees in classics from Mount Holyoke, and from Syracuse University she received her degree in library science. Maintaining the library is a never-ending task, and the librarian's duty encompasses ordering new books as well as keeping track of what is already on hand. When not in the library, Miss Brown enjoys sewing, reading, and traveling.

Classical's typing teacher, Miss Dorothy Porter, has a significant influence over the development of Classical students. From her they learn the skills necessary for term papers and college. A graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University, Miss Porter is also business adviser to Blue and White. In her free time, Miss Porter enjoys reading and traveling.

The school nurse, Mrs. Rose Burns, is a comfort to all ailing Classical students. A graduate of Mercy Hospital School of Nursing, Mrs. Burns also serves the junior high.

teachers and administrators

Classical's cooks: front row: Mary Seaver, Attilia Zorzi, Rose Gallerano, Peggy Lyon, Carmella Bisi. SECOND row: Bertha Cannon, Marion Schwarz, Dora Rickson, Josephine Saracino.

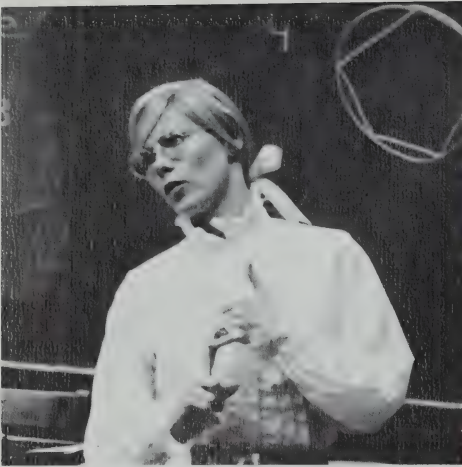

Mr. Angelo Odato, who keeps the Classical annex clean, is setting up a striking Christmas display.

Chief of custodial services Mr. William Paige, along with his entire staff, gives Classical the constant attention any old edifice requires.

Each English course opens

A stimulating teacher of English, Mrs. Joan P. Abrahamsen especially enjoys her Writing Workshop classes because they allow her to reach the students in an informal manner. She attended both De Pauw University and Northwestern Illinois State College. Outside of school Mrs. Abrahamsen enjoys horseback riding, swimming, and traveling.

A graduate of both Michigan State University and the University of Michigan, Mrs. Jean Bogan is quite busy with her English classes, but still finds time for her role as the National Honor Society adviser. With three young people in her family, she has little time to pursue a specific hobby, but she enjoys reading, sewing, and knitting.

A teacher of English and the advisor to the Classical Recorder, Mr. Henry D. Brady feels that to get along with his students he must understand the problems of their generation. Mr. Brady attended Baylor University, Yale University, and spent two and a half years at Harvard. He is known as a kind, understanding person and is admired by his students.

new paths of knowledge

A new teacher on Classical's staff, Miss Kathleen Bromley is a graduate of Bowling Green University. In school, Miss Bromley teaches English classes. Outside of school, she enjoys skating, swimming, and reading poetry.

Another newcomer to Classical, Miss Judith Carlson teaches English. She was a student at Westfield State College, Bridgewater College, and Springfield College. Miss Carlson enjoys traveling, gardening, and reading. She is also an active member in the Z.T.M.A..

An involved and interesting English teacher, Mrs. Susan J. Danton also serves as an adviser to the freshman class. Mrs. Danton is a graduate of the College of Our Lady of the Elms, Westfield State College, and the University of Massachusetts. In her spare time, Mrs. Danton enjoys cooking and sewing.

English is one of the most

Miss Ruth Dickerman is a graduate of Mount Holyoke College, Springfield College, and Cornell University. She is the chairman of Classical's English department and teaches speech as well as English courses. Miss Dickerman is also the advisor to Girls' Patrol. Her outside interests include reading and the theatre.

Mr. Francis X. Girr is a graduate of the University of Rhode Island and the University of Connecticut. Mr. Girr teaches English and vocabulary building and also has the job of distributing books for the English department. He is the adviser to the Culture Vultures club. In his spare time Mr. Girr enjoys art, reading, and woodworking.

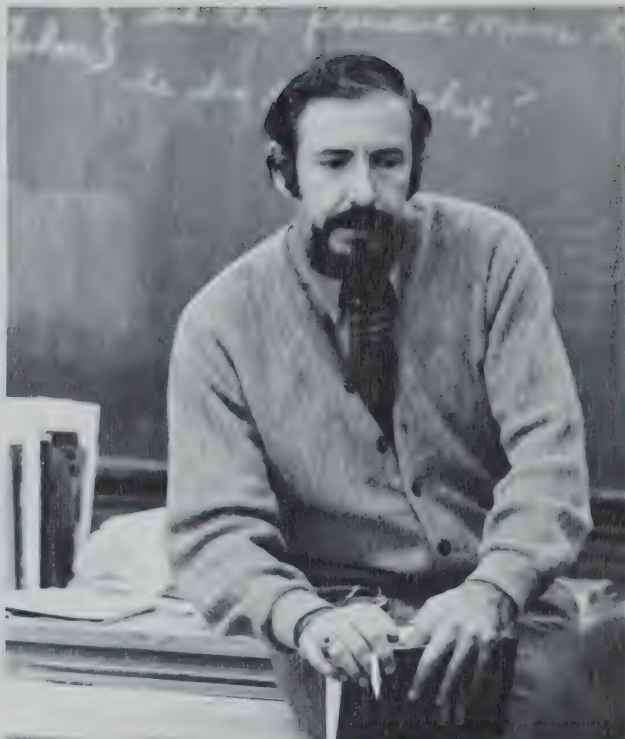

Mr. William Z. Lavin has been a student at Boston University and American International College. Mr. Lavin is an English teacher at Classical. During his leisure time, Mr. Lavin is a sports enthusiast and is interested in creative writing. His special hobby is antiques.

varied and complicated languages

Miss Virginia Mills is one of Classical's fine English teachers. A graduate of Bates College and Trinity College, Miss Mills also teaches reading efficiency at Classical. She is the adviser to Peirides literary club and arranges the Veterans of Foreign Wars Speaking Contest for Classical High. Outside of her school activities Miss Mills also enjoys travel.

Mr. Richard Pervonga has attended several colleges, among them American International College, Boston University, Indiana University, and Springfield College. Mr. Pervonga teaches English, writing workshop, and drama at Classical. He enjoys all winter sports, swimming, horseback riding, and is interested in theatre and the arts.

Mrs. Laurie Pieterse is the teacher of a new course at Classical. Called American Studies, the course combines both English and American History. Mrs. Pieterse also teaches psychology and serves as adviser to Scribe, Classical's literary magazine. A graduate of Yale University and the College of Our Lady of the Elms, Mrs. Pieterse enjoys gardening, painting, and music.

English and language teachers stress

The adviser to Blue and White, Miss Lorraine Plasse is an English and drama teacher. She has done theatre work and enjoys reading, painting, and drawing. A graduate of Emmanuel College and New York University, Miss Plasse is a director for extracurricular drama class projects. Robert Deburro, year-book editor, confers with Miss Plasse in this picture.

Miss Teresa E. Regina is a Classical High English teacher. She also is chairman of the English Curriculum Committee. A graduate of Springfield College and Mount Holyoke College, Miss Regina is active in the Springfield Education Association. She also enjoys reading and working on political campaigns.

Mrs. Phyllis Thomas has graduated from both American International College and the College of Our Lady of the Elms. Besides teaching English classes at Classical, she is a counselor for the Springfield Teachers' Club. In her spare time Mrs. Thomas enjoys reading, music, and dancing.

the power of the written and spoken word

Mrs. Harriet Widland teaches English at Classical and is also an adviser to the Drama Club. She is a graduate of both Syracuse University and Springfield College. Mrs. Widland enjoys the theatre, music, bridge, and working with youth groups.

Mr. Neil A. Yesu is the adviser for the Senate, Forum, and the Cross Country Club, as well as being the Cross Country Coach and an English teacher. A graduate of American International College, Westfield State College, Springfield College, and the University of Massachusetts, Mr. Yesu is also active in teacher union activities and politics. He enjoys reading, sports, and his family life.

Miss Carolina Accorsi is a graduate of Skidmore College and has done graduate study at the Catholic University of America. Miss Accorsi teaches both Spanish and French as well as working with Student Treasury. She also does volunteer work with Spanish speaking people. The languages are a continuous hobby for Miss Accorsi, but she also hopes to take up gardening and do more reading in the future.

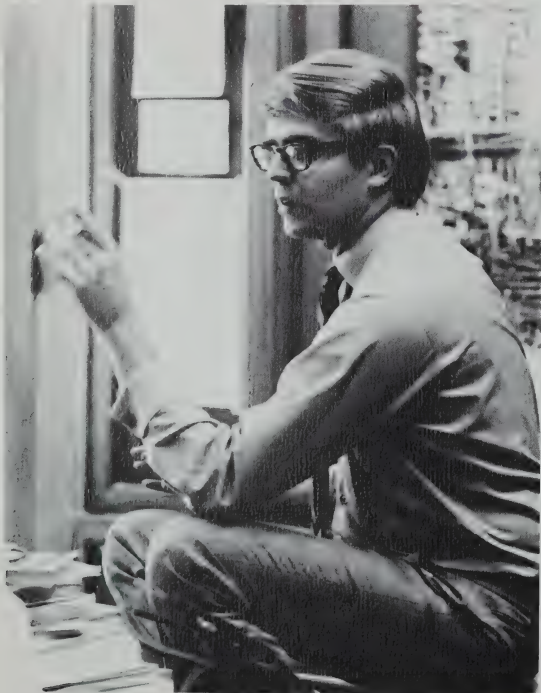

Modern languages mirror our

Mr. Robert Curley is a graduate of Holy Cross College and has also attended the University of Montreal. He is in charge of the Latin Department and also teaches French. Mr. Curley serves as adviser to the Classical Latin Club. He enjoys music and his favorite pastime is a hearty game of golf.

Both a French and Hebrew teacher, Dr. Philip Miller is also adviser to the Hebrew Club. He was a student at City College of New York, Teachers Institute, the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, Yeshiva University, West Virginia University, Hebrew University, and the University of Rennes in France. Although synagogue and community organizations take up much of his spare time, Dr. Miller finds moments to enjoy art, music, and literature.

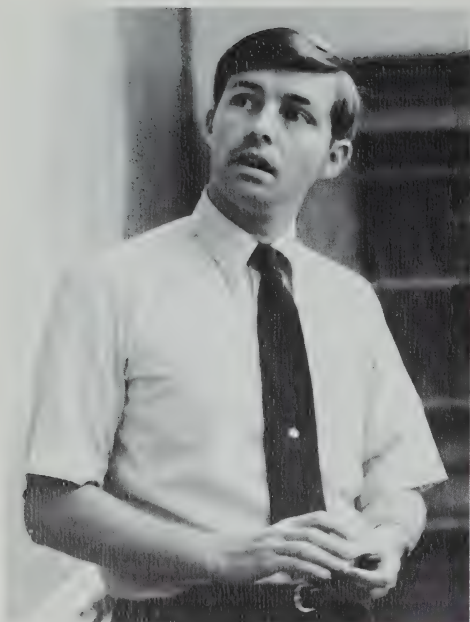

Mrs. Jeanne M. Wessman, a French teacher, is new to Classical this year. She is a graduate of Smith College, Middlebury College, and American International College. Visiting museums, cooking, and music are Mrs. Wessman's favorite diversions.

Mr. Alberto Zavala, who is originally from Peru, lived in India before he became a Spanish teacher at Classical. A graduate of Baker University and George Peabody College for Teachers, Mr. Zavala previously taught geography, sociology, and psychology. He enjoys lecturing, traveling, and sports.

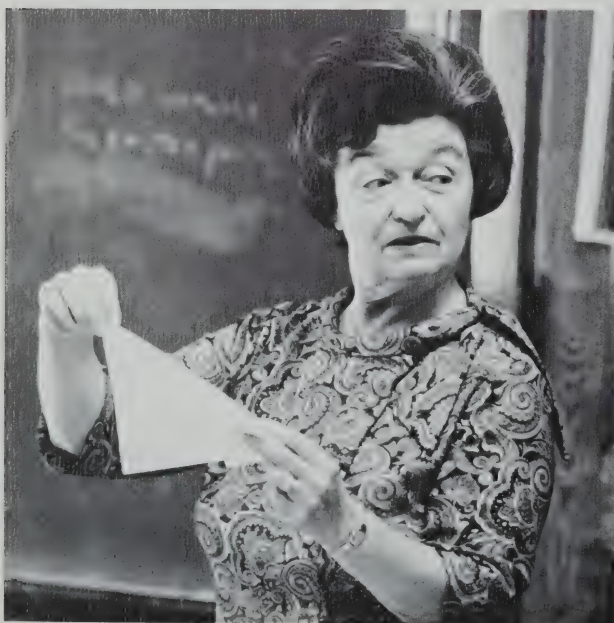

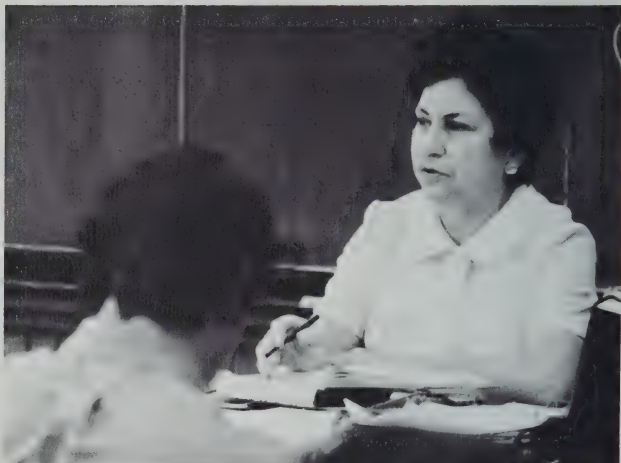

Challenging math programs

An active math teacher, Mr. Richard C. Annino, finds time to participate in the Schoolmaster's Bowling League. Chairman of the Junior Class Advisers' Committee, he is also co-supervisor of the Boys' Patrol and a lunch period supervisor. Although these activities take much of his spare time, Mr. Annino still finds time for sports and the less strenuous collecting of stamps.

A deeply interested and qualified math teacher, Mrs. Julia Bale is math department chairman and supervisor to Mathletes. Mrs. Bale attended Hunter College, Columbia University, and the University of New Mexico. Gardening, camping, and square dancing are among Mrs. Bale's interests.

Mrs. Julia Beverley, another of Classical's math teachers, received her Bachelor's degree from Wellesley College, and Master's degree from Columbia University Graduate School of Teaching. Mrs. Beverley is supervisor to the Red Cross organization at Classical. Her other interests include traveling and reading.

stimulate Classical students

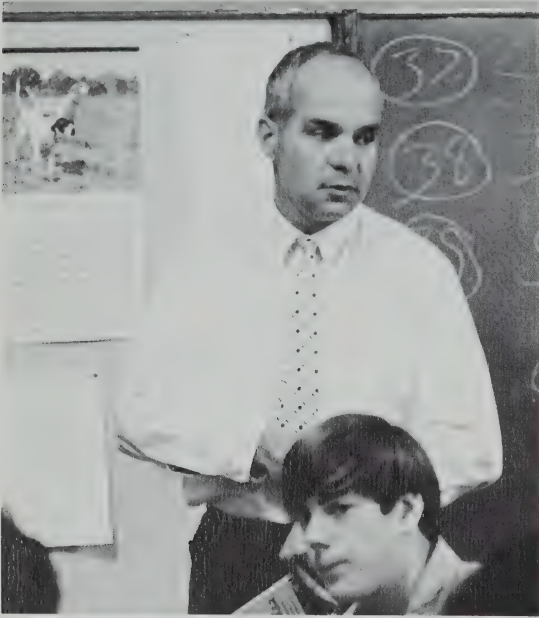

Mrs. Mildred Cabana received her education at Fitchburg State College, Springfield College, and Westfield State College. At Classical, Mrs. Cabana is a math teacher and junior class adviser. Outside of school, she enjoys golf, bridge, and the company of her three children.

Because of his interest in bowling, Mr. Armand Jermakian is bowling coach as well as a math teacher at Classical. He is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts, and attended the University of the State of New York, the University of Michigan, and Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. Mr. Jermakian's other interests include golf and reading.

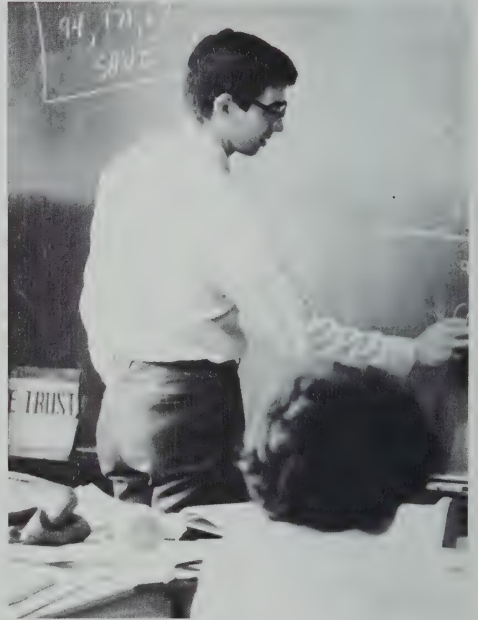

Mr. Robert C. Keough is a math teacher and junior varsity soccer coach. He is a graduate of Springfield College, Cornell University, and Case Institute of Technology. Mr. Keough's interests include golf, bowling, and his family of four children.

Mathematics provides a foundation

Mr. Allan Peck is a math teacher, Mathletes adviser, and AVA adviser. He received his education at Westfield State College and Rutgers University. Mr. Peck spends his spare time skiing, camping, and, a less pleasant occupation, clearing the lot for his new home.

Besides teaching math, Mr. Richard A. Pare is coach to Classical's golf team. He received his education at the University of Massachusetts, Westfield State College, San Diego State College, and Central Connecticut College. Mr. Pare enjoys golf and skiing in his spare time.

Mrs. Patricia Ramsdell instructs courses in math and computer programming. She received her degrees at the College of Our Lady of the Elms and Ohio State University. Mrs. Ramsdell is an adviser to the senior class. Outside of school activities, Mrs. Ramsdell's interests include sewing, knitting, cooking, skiing, and swimming.

for inquiring minds

Mr. Robert Stevens is a math teacher and president of a swim club. Besides swimming, he is interested in skiing, gardening, camping, tennis, and golf. Mr. Stevens is a graduate of Fitchburg State College, American International College, and Boston College.

Adviser to the senior class and the "Schools Match Wits" team, Mr. John J. Sullivan is a math teacher. His personal interests include golf, sailing, and water skiing. Mr. Sullivan is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts, Springfield College, and Hamilton College.

Miss Barbara L. Weissbrod is another Classical math teacher. She is also an adviser to the junior class. A gardener and sports fan, Miss Weissbrod is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts and Harvard University.

Science plays an increasingly

New to Classical this year, Mr. Ab Chin Chu is a chemistry teacher. He is a graduate of the National Taiwan University and Yale University. Interested in books, music, and language, Mr. Chu also enjoys gardening, ping-pong, and badminton.

Known as Mr. G., Mr. Richard G. Guzowski is a biology teacher and a senior class adviser. Mr. Guzowski enjoys camping, woodworking, photography, and traveling.

A chemistry teacher, Mr. Francis M. Lamoureux is a graduate of American International College and Worcester Polytechnic Institute. Besides his classes, Mr. Lamoureux is in charge of distributing locker keys. His diversified interests are skiing, archery, antique cars, and photography.

important role in our complex world

A physics and math teacher, Mr. Edward Lundrigan is also a golf coach and chess club adviser. He is a graduate of St. Michael's College and attended College of Our Lady of the Elms, Westfield State College, American International College, and Springfield College. Mr. Lundrigan's personal interests include golf, softball, chess, and conservation. His primary ambition is to build a homestead.

As the science department chairman, Mr. H. Howard Lynch is a teacher of physics and advanced physics. He is also the chairman of the very vital Student Treasury. Mr. Lynch received his education at Harvard College and Harvard Graduate School of Education. His personal interests include camping, concerts, and gardening.

A native of Springfield, Mr. Albert J. Mariani is both a math and biology teacher. He received his education at Fairfield University and took extra courses at Smith College. Mr. Mariani's hobbies are photography, amateur radio broadcasting, and reading.

A stimulating biology teacher, Mr. James O'Donnell spends most of his time preparing for his classes and labs, especially for his advanced biology course. In teaching his students, Mr. O'Donnell believes in utilizing lab facilities with his class and in helping them through some of the difficult assignments. His outside time is spent in dealing with his duties as a Model Cities Policy Board member. He also enjoys reading, gardening, and "puttering around."

A graduate of St. Anselm's College, Westfield State College, and Bridgewater State College, Mr. Jerome Shea is known throughout the school for his enthusiastic attempt to keep the plant room in good condition. Besides teaching biology, Mr. Shea enjoys sports, ecology, and horticulture.

Mr. Robert C. Smith, a teacher of both physiology and biology, graduated from Springfield College where he earned his Bachelor of Science, his Masters in Education, and professional diploma in science. Mr. Smith is the junior varsity soccer coach as well as the varsity baseball coach. He is also active in sports outside of school. When he needs relaxation, he enjoys reading.

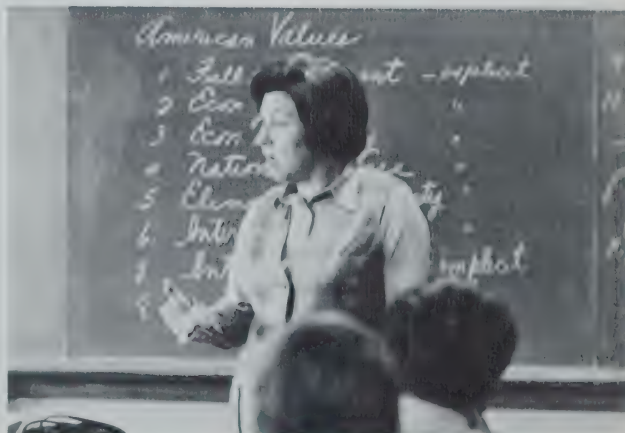

social studies in man's development

One of our few faculty members now teaching in the Annex, Mrs. Barbara Bowen is also experimenting with the two-period English-American history class. Along with Mrs. Pieterse, she is trying to combine both English and history into one subject called American Studies. Mrs. Bowen enjoys working with young people and is interested in reading, gardening, and music.

A graduate of both Westfield and Springfield Colleges, Mr. William Conway is one of our new staff members. Besides teaching American history, he also has one English class. Outside of his work at Classical, Mr. Conway coaches a girls' soccer team. Mr. Conway enjoys camping, skiing, and golfing.

As an American history and an economics teacher, Mrs. Frances Evans believes that both these topics aim to help the student to relate yesterday's problems with today's world. By knowing not just facts, but reasons also, her students can understand the relationship of man to his environment. Mrs. Evans' outside interests include politics, reading, going to the theater, and relaxing walks.

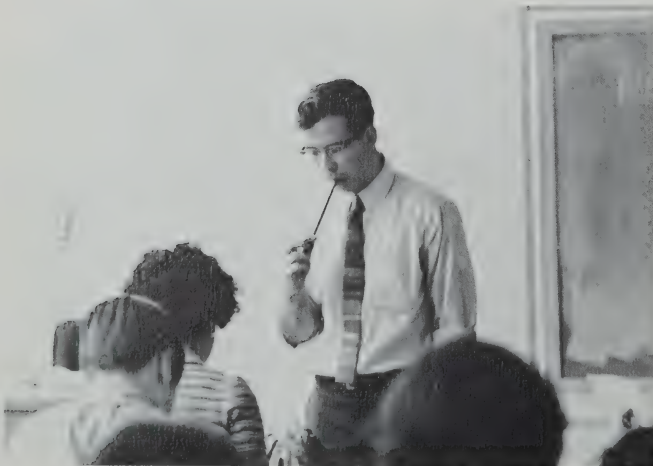

Social studies increases our

A teacher of both American history and Black studies, Mrs. Jeannette Harris is starting her first full year at Classical. A graduate of Boston University and the University of Massachusetts, she enjoys music, photography, and traveling. Mrs. Harris, interested in travel, has been to West Africa, North Africa, Europe, and the West Indies.

Replacing Mr. Eugene Ruddeforth, Mr. Clark Henderson is a teacher of American history. He was graduated from D.C. Teachers College where he received his B.S. degree. He also attended the University of Hawaii and Howard University. He enjoys chess, tennis, and reading.

With pencil in hand, Mr. Steven LeClair stands distinguished at the head of his class. A teacher of German, French, and American history, he is also the advisor to the History Club. He received his education at the University of Massachusetts and is again studying there for new techniques in education. Mr. Leclair enjoys reading, the outdoor life, and sports in general.

knowledge of the problems of our world

A teacher of American and world history, Miss Mary Morris believes that there should be greater stress on the people and the times rather than on events. Although teaching takes up most of her day, Miss Morris still finds time to advise the Future Teachers' Club. A graduate of Westfield College and Yale University, she enjoys reading, sewing, and collecting whatever seems to be appropriate at the moment.

A graduate of Springfield and Trinity Colleges, Mr. Daniel Meder teaches American history and government. He is also the basketball coach and the faculty manager of athletics. Co-adviser of Boys' Patrol, his sense of humor lets his entire class feel comfortable when he reduces the pressure of intensive studies with an occasional joke or two. Mr. Meder enjoys traveling, sports, and reading in his spare time.

Mr. William R. Young, chairman of the history and social studies department, is a versatile teacher of American, ancient, and European history. A man involved with the many facets of life in our world, Mr. Young also teaches anthropology. A graduate of Syracuse University and the University of Michigan, Mr. Young also attended the University of Chicago, Brandeis University, Boston College, and the University of Massachusetts.

Teachers give generously of

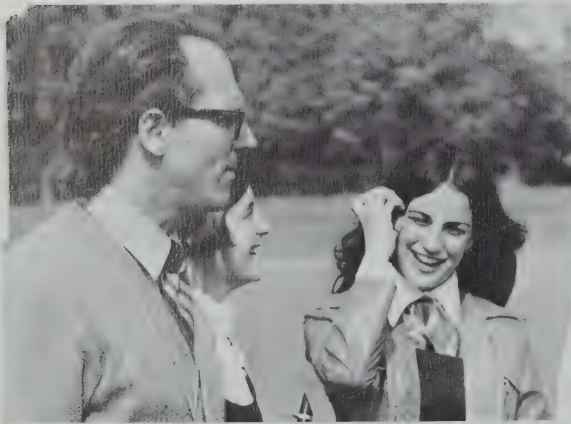

A graduate of the University of Wisconsin, Mr. Ronald Anderson has received his Bachelor of Science degree in Art Education, his Master of Science in the same subject, as well as his Master of Fine Arts degree. He is the only teacher to conduct a fourth period class here at Classical and to teach the rest of the day at a junior high school. He enjoys skiing, hiking, and swimming.

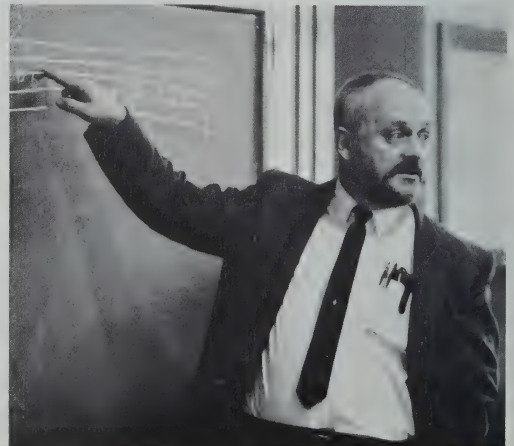

Totally immersed in art, Mr. Joseph Nai seems to be involved in the new aspects of teaching his subject. A graduate of New York University and Bridgewater State College, Mr. Nai is never satisfied with the old way of teaching when there are new techniques to be explored. His outside interests also involve art, and he is especially talented in the fields of sculpture and pottery.

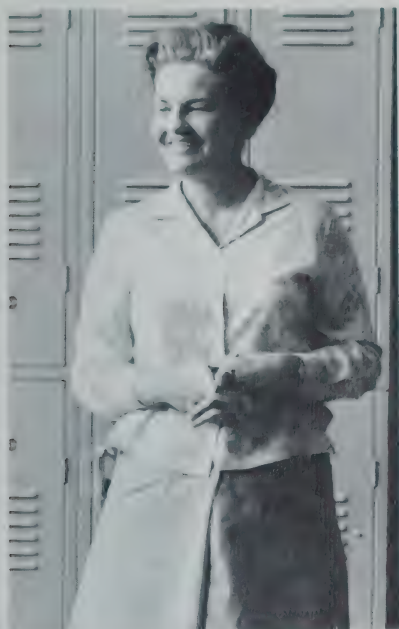

A talented music teacher, Mr. Paul Robbins is a graduate of New England Conservatory of Music, Teachers' College, Columbia University, and the University of Massachusetts. With enthusiastic ability, Mr. Robbins conducts the Chorus, Madrigal, and the Choir. After school, Mr. Robbins likes to travel. For less expensive enjoyment, he likes to read.

Conductor of the concert, marching, and stage bands, as well as the orchestra and the ensembles, Dr. Vincent O'Keeffe graduated from both Boston and Columbia Universities. Well known for his wit and humor, he directs the band and the orchestra in many of the Classical assemblies. Outside of school, Dr. O'Keeffe enjoys sailing, tennis, and music of all types.

their knowledge and experience

One of our girls' physical education teachers, Mrs. Audrey Desrochers, informally known as "Mrs. D." by her students, graduated from Sargent College at Boston University. She enjoys music, reading, sewing, knitting, and Oriental art. One of her favorite hobbies is the art of yoga, which she is passing on to her gym students in a class-like manner. She is now studying to be a home economics teacher.

Miss Elsa Rosenak is an enthusiastic teacher of physical education. She has received her B.S. in physical education from Indiana University and her M.S. in the same field from the University of Wisconsin. Miss Rosenak enjoys bicycle riding, touring, skiing, golf, and swimming. While she relaxes, she enjoys sketching and listening to classical music.

Mr. Donald Vaughan teaches his physical education classes the fundamental principles of physical fitness as well as the idea of good sportsmanship. A graduate of Springfield College, Mr. Vaughan is the coach for the soccer, track, and senior basketball teams. Although his job is very demanding, Mr. Vaughan finds time for boating and hunting.

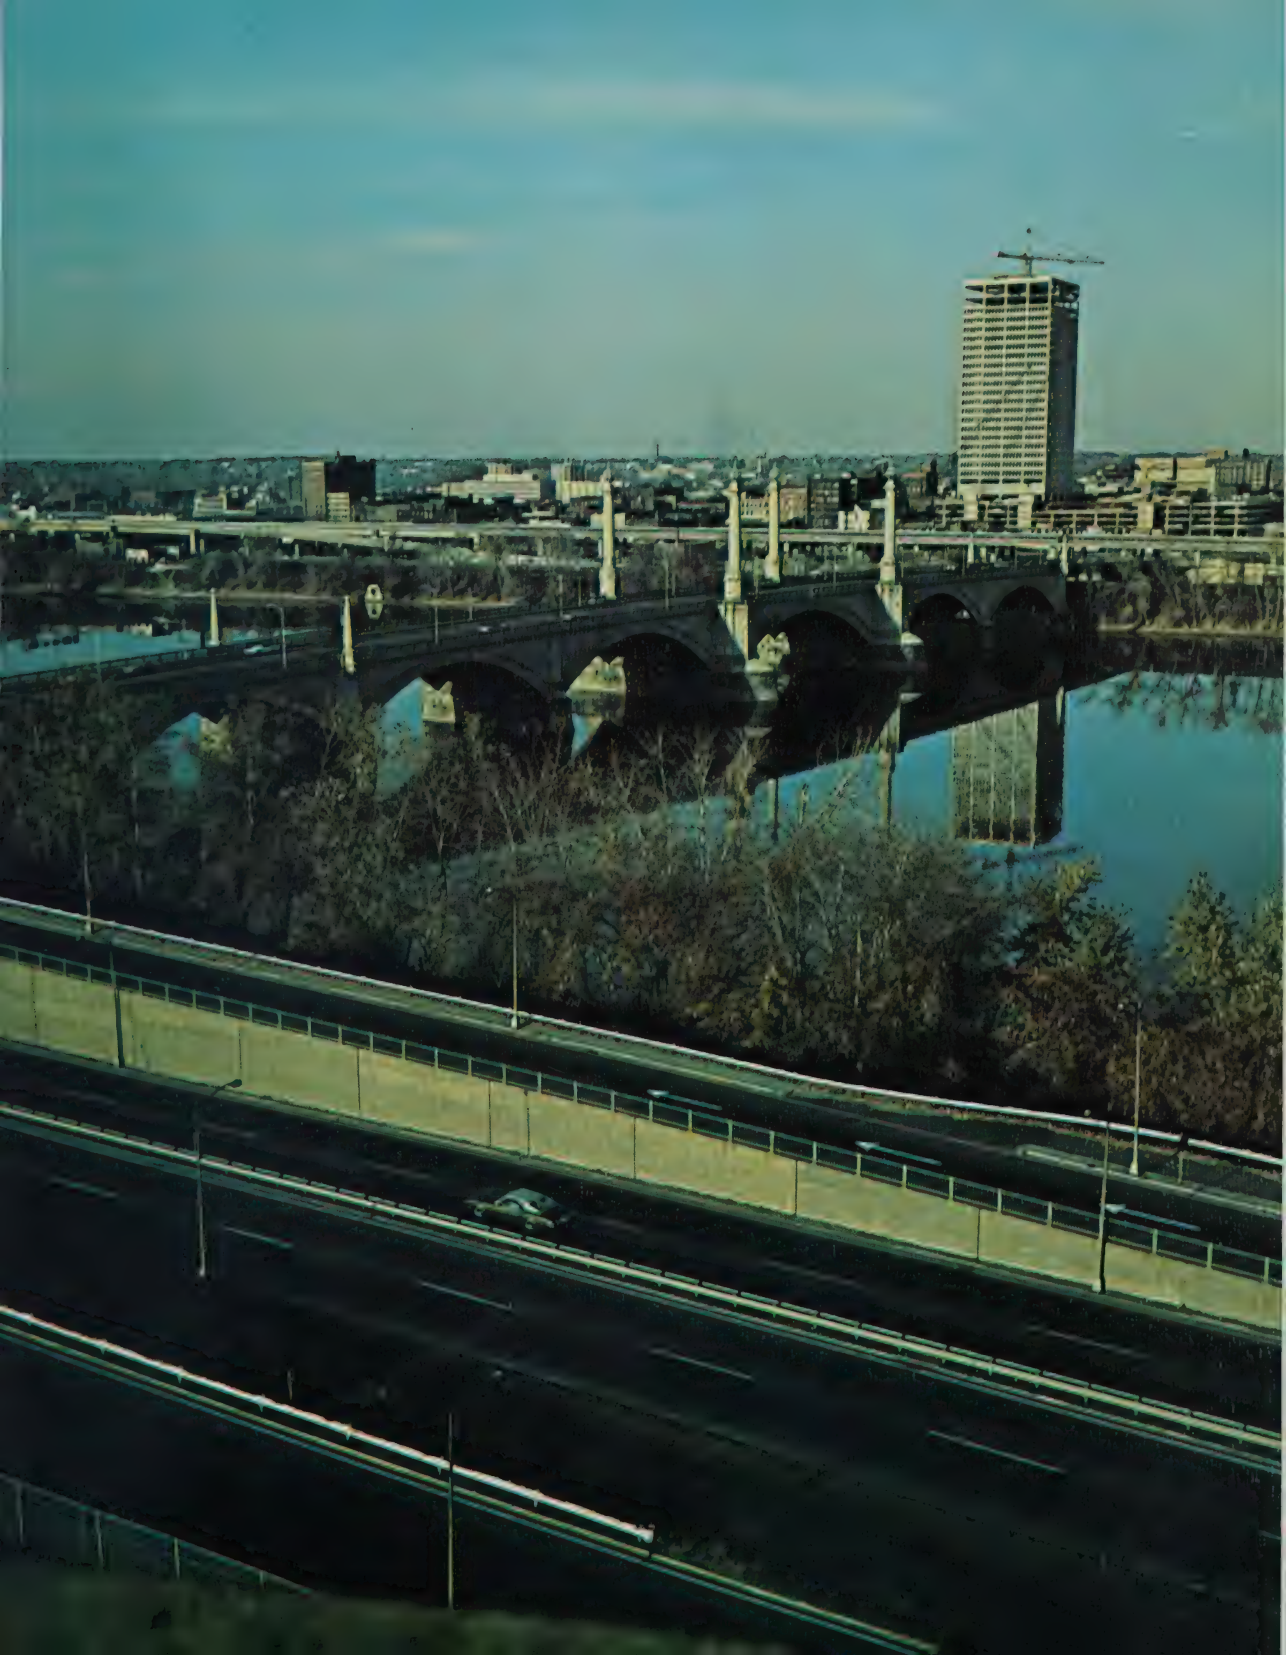

Inspiring young athletes is Mr. Archie Cataldi's main task as a physical education teacher. A graduate of Boston University and Springfield College, Mr. Cataldi also attended Westfield State College and Rhode Island College. Mr. Cataldi is coach of the football team and the assistant coach of the track team. Outside of school Mr. Cataldi has little spare time, but whenever he can manage it, he enjoys a game of golf.

BAYSTATE WEST

Our mayor and city council recognized the need to attract new business and to create more jobs in the downtown area. The mammoth Baystate West project assures the city's continued growth and will bring the city immeasurable return in tax dollars in years to come. In the years our city was growing, we at Classical grew to greater understanding of ourselves and the world about us. While the Baystate West Tower is the symbol of the city's growth, it also seems to reflect the Classical student who has matured in its shadow.

Classical offers its students

MR. JOHN SULLIVAN

MRS. ANTOINETTE DIMICHELE

It has been a great pleasure to work with and know the many members of the class of 1971. We hope that you have enjoyed your years at Classical as much as we have enjoyed working with you. It has been gratifying to assist you during your three years. We hope that your future will be as rewarding as your past and we thank you for the many pleasant memories.

KAREN DAVIS

618 Allen St.

Karen was an active three-year member of IRC. In her junior year she was on the Jr. Prom Committee and as a senior she tutored Spanish. Outside of school a part time job and skiing keep Karen busy. She plans to attend college where she will major in dental hygiene.

Will wonders never cease?! An empty corridor at Classical!

... and that glowing feeling

MARTHA HEATON

2151 Page Blvd.

During her freshman and junior years, Marty was a member of IRC, Freshman Activities Committee, and the Girls' Chorus. Although much of her free time outside of school is taken up with a part time job, Marty also enjoys swimming, horseback riding, and spectator sports. She hopes to attend college and to become a social worker.

EDDIE HOSTEN

292 Quincy St.

Interests in basketball and racing have occupied a great deal of Eddie's time during his three-year stay at Classical. A very friendly individual, Eddie hopes to attend college after graduation. Deeply interested in building and planning, he would like to become an architect.

GARY JAILLET

328 Main St., I.O.

Gary's extracurricular activities at Classical were primarily athletic. He was a member of the soccer team and a two-year member of the track team while at Classical. His other interests include fishing, hunting, and assorted sports.

ILANA JAROSLOW

23 Trinity Ter.

While at Classical, Lan was a member of the Spanish Club in her junior and senior years. She was also on the Junior Prom Art Committee. Her outside interests include art and sewing. Lan hopes to pursue a career that would allow her to combine art with sewing.

HELENA KASHMANIAN

46 Pheland St.

Although Nina's school activities have been somewhat limited, some of her interests include listening to rock music and just having a good time. In the future Nina plans to attend a two-year college and, hopefully, to become a lab technician.

STEPHEN LAPIERRE

27 Pidgeon Dr.

Steve's activities during his years at Classical included playing home-room basketball in his senior year. Outside of school, he generally enjoys spectator sports and particularly likes a good game of basketball. Steve hopes to become a physiologist after college.

JODI MELTZER

22 Florentine Gardens

Although Jodi has not participated in many activities while at Classical, in her spare time she enjoys music, dancing, and modeling. It is because of her interest in the latter that Jodi would like to become a professional model.

DEBRA HILL

435 Trafton Rd.

Debbie enjoys pursuing her many outside interests which include listening to records, and traveling. Helpful to others, her main ambition is to become a schoolteacher or mathematician, and to continue to enrich her life by traveling.

JOHN LEARNED

11 Rodney Smith Jr. Cir., I.O.

During his years at Classical, John was a three-year member of the varsity swim team and a member of the Boys' Patrol in both his junior and senior years. He was also very active playing and coaching many sports outside of school. John likes working with children and hopes to coach them in the future.

STEPHANIE ORBACH

183 Chalmers St.

Steffie has been involved in many outside activities including art, listening to records, singing, and sewing. She also enjoys hiking and writing philosophy. When she graduates, Steffie would like to work in computer programming or to join the Peace Corps or Vista.

of achievement.

DAVID RYAN

42 Spruceland Ave.

Dave was a three-year member of the Classical Chess Club. Outside of school, his interests center around riflery and the stock market. He is also the owner of a large coin collection. A former Junior Achievement member, Dave hopes to become a portfolio manager of stocks.

MICHAEL TROW

76 Hall St.

In his spare time Michael enjoys music and reading as well as social activities. He has not yet decided on a definite career choice, but he plans to attend college after his graduation from Classical.

HEATHER ALLAN

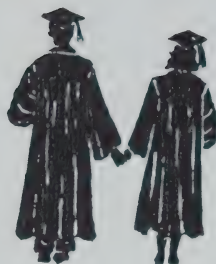

128 Fiberloid St., I.O.

DIANE DOYLE

338 Abbott St.

MARY McGEE

Classical students seek

Mr. Montagna reviews the proposed subjects for the "mini-courses" with Leslie MacPhaul, Lillian Ball, and Carol Ernst.

High schools across the country have begun to realize that textbooks, supplementary reading, and a rousing lecture are not the only tools needed to stimulate student interest. More is needed and new "tools" have to be implemented. At Classical, one such "tool" is our computer. This year a course was instituted to familiarize students with a complete, fundamental understanding of computers. This course, which had a long waiting list, operated on the pass-fail system. By using the computer, the student gained in his ability to reason. Finally, theories learned were put to the test of workability as each student ran his program through the terminal.

Analysis of musical compositions is an enjoyable part of the Music Appreciation course. Here, Mr. Robbins reviews the structure of a piece with Beatrice Traynham and Richard Rasanen.

A new program instituted through Student Government this year was the powerful and effective Curriculum Committee. Headed by Carol Ernst, this active group made it their business to evaluate, examine, and review Classical's present curriculum and later to suggest innovations which would lead to greater relevance for the students. A major project was the planning of "mini-courses" at the end of the school year. The committee felt that these course changes would afford a break from the students' regular routine and would free the teacher from clerical chores. The student could select the program he wished to follow and work with the teacher, thus making the last few weeks of school something to look forward to, rather than a time to dread.

that which is relevant

Offering an insight into the history and origin of the black man, the Black Studies course has proven successful for all who have shared in its stimulating and broadening class discussions. The course lent greater understanding of the black man and his vital contributions to our society. As part of their classroom projects, the Black Studies group planned and organized the successful Black History Week, which promoted pride and greater awareness for all.

Mrs. Harris discusses a project for the Black History Week with her class while Michael McKillop takes in her advice.

Mr. Pervonga keeps a director's eye on the improvisation acted out by Howard Wisniowski and Bill Baisden.

Classical's drama course provides an outlet for student expression and hidden talents. The course had wide appeal because of its relaxed class atmosphere and exciting theatrical projects.

Classical students seem to have reflected the mood of today's youth. They have become more involved, more investigating, more aware of world happenings, and more reluctant to simply memorize textbooks. During the year, new efforts were made to propel students to greater involvement in outside affairs. One such appeal for relevance was the attraction of different guest speakers. Students were finally given opportunities to seek out for themselves answers to their queries as to the significance and importance of the events taking place around them.

Discussing the important issues in the gubernatorial election are Gail Monroe, Fran Reilly, and guest speaker, Nancy Sargent.

An old school adapts

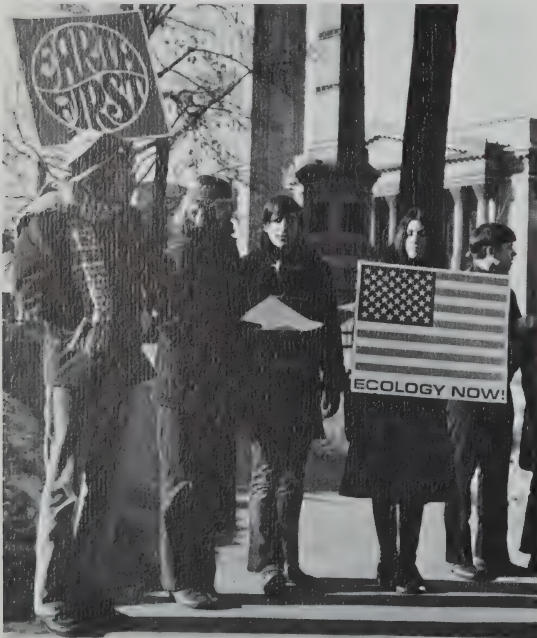

Gail Monroe, Hilda Shand and Gerald Stover show that the ability to listen critically is an important aspect of the student court.

Early this past fall, the Classical Student Court was formed amid doubts from many students who questioned its necessity. A poll taken at the close of the 1970 school year showed a majority of Classical students were opposed to the court. The court system, however, was formed per order of the School's Central Office. Classical's nine-member elected court body, therefore, sat ready to render its judgements. The court, which is a recommending body and may be over-ridden by principal veto, holds jurisdiction over "serious offenses," which are defined as those punishable by at least five hours detention, excluding student-teacher conflicts or cases involving criminal action. The court's merits were expressed well by one of its advisers who said that the true value of the court lies in the fact that it is there — well organized and ready to serve.

Always willing to express their opinions before rendering their judgements are Stokley Tsaros, Faye Thomas and Laura Stinnette.

James Roche and a protest line of the Student Ecology Committee demonstrate at Court Square for the abolishment of phosphates in washing detergents. Newly formed this year, the Ecology Committee is a prime example of Classical's active involvement in community and national affairs.

Dr. Deady turns to the Classical delegation — James Lepow, Sue Cormier, Cynthia Burton and Bill Jones — for their views on the proposal to allow smoking in the schools.

In an attempt to maintain a close rapport with students governed, the office of the superintendent of schools instituted a program this year which brought Dr. Deady and student representatives together for discussion of common problems. The Superintendent's Advisory Council, which met twice a month, was instrumental in airing the views of Classical students. It was a step beyond our regular Student Government, since proposals for improvement were made through direct means with school administrators. The chosen representatives from each of the city's high schools brought to each meeting an enthusiasm for progress which led to ultimate educational benefits.

to meet new challenges

On the 13th through the 15th of October, a committee selected from the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools evaluated Classical High School. Classical received a five-year accreditation along with a number of favorable criticisms and suggested modifications. During their stay, evaluators attended classes, ate school lunches, and talked with faculty and students in order to gain a complete and fair appraisal.

To prove their devotion to duty, the evaluating committee even ate at the Classical cafeteria. Here students discuss lunch facilities with a member of the evaluating team.

"An outstanding heritage, excellent college preparatory program, and a highly successful college admissions rate," was the summary statement made after Classical's three-day evaluation. However, the sixty-page report listed numerous recommendations for improvement. Stressed in the report were expanded school facilities in most areas. Recommendations included an expanded physical education department, an increased facility for administration staff parking, a larger library, a public address system, and other suggested improvements in the building's physical make-up.

Acting as a tour guide, Mr. Montagna is approached by a group of evaluators who seek directions to their home base, the school library.

Evaluators pause on the front steps to review and discuss their activities of the day.

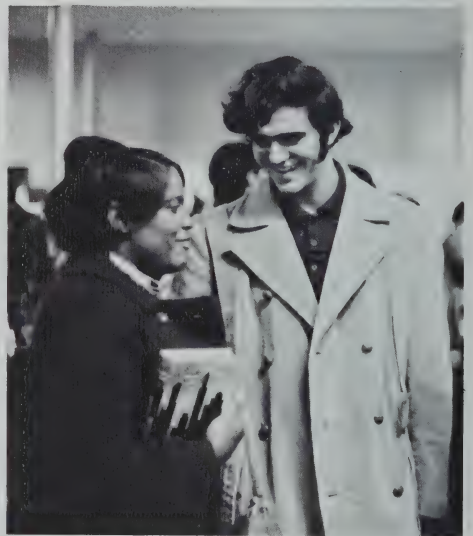

Alumni Tea offers former graduates another

Debbie Weisfogel pours a cup of cool punch for stage crew chief, Jamie Tower, and former stage crew chief, Irv Potter.

On December 22, 1970, the William C. Hill chapter of the National Honor Society offered to last year's graduating class an opportunity to revisit the revered halls of Classical High School. Graduates returned in full force to compare notes with former classmates and to discuss the new alterations and programs made at their Alma Mater. Time for a cup of cold punch and a relaxed discussion of "old times" makes this gathering a highly anticipated event.

"Do you really have co-ed dorms?" Sharon Ross questions Joe Bonales.

In June, a Classical senior's mind turns to thoughts of an enjoyable summer, remembrances of his past three school years, and to the challenge of a college education. Most seniors are, at least in part, glad to be leaving high school. However, at the summer's end, the new college freshmen look forward to the one event, the Alumni Tea, which brings him back to that high school. Each year, the preceding graduating class proves William C. Hill's theory correct — "Classical is the greatest school in the universe."

"And you wouldn't believe the parties," Debbi Davison gestures to Charles Reiter, while Debbie Tougias nods her agreement.

ACTIVITIES

THE SPRINGFIELD NEWSPAPERS

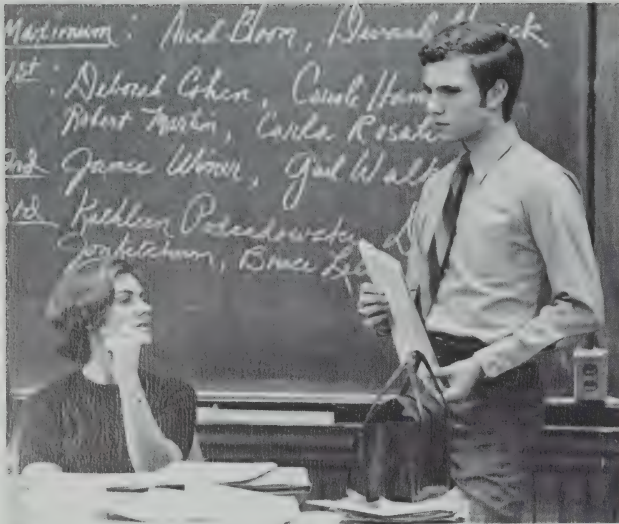

Springfield's New North has played a major role in the city's rebuilding. One of the many prestigious new facilities is a new plant to care for present and future needs planned by the Springfield Newspapers. Here members from the Recorder and Blue and White staff tour the new plant. The new Springfield Newspapers Plant is an apt example to echo the activities of Classical. No other group of people is kept more active than those who relate the world's news. Thus, we have found no better way to tell the story of Classical High School and its relevance to the outside community.

Editor-in-chief, Rob Deburro, consults yearbook adviser, Miss Plasse, on the rapidly approaching deadlines.

The members of the Senior section: Robert Martin, Deborah Cohen, Gail Monroe, and Deborah Novack develop senior write-ups and choose candidates for their section, which is beginning to take form.

Concerned with the arrangement and contents of the Administration section are its members: Rose Mancuso, James Winer, Bruce Leiter, and Sandy Rigazio. The staff annually presents background information on the faculty members.

new techniques

The Freshman and Junior section comprised of Cindy Tucker, Kathy Podsadowski and Maxine Creanza put the finishing touches that will make their section complete. It will eventually contain all the freshman and junior homeroom pictures interspersed with candids.

The Activities section, the largest and busiest, meets to collaborate the results of its latest assignments. Arvid Bloom, Bernie Vyzga, Claire Lyons, seated: Jon Ketchum and Thom Dearborn compare layout designs. The staff is kept active throughout the year, constantly keeping up with the latest school functions.

In order to present an account of the past year's activities, the yearbook staff has burned the midnight oil ever-conscious of pressing deadlines. The production of this year's book involved the intricate procedure of careful planning and diligent follow-through of the basic theme. In the spring, it is submitted to the Columbia Scholastic Press Association where its value is merited in comparison to its peers.

Editing the Sports section are Mark Cassanelli and J. P. Hennessey. The Sports section receives vast amounts of pictures that must be sifted through to find the perfect "action" shots for the layouts.

Student Government breeds

Jamie Herlihy demonstrates an important aspect of Student Government "hitting the campaign trail."

Conducting the annual Student Treasury Drive is one of the most important aspects of Student Government. The ten representatives of each class meet weekly to discuss problems of general student interest. They keep the school informed of their actions and opinions through an up-dated bulletin-board. Newly initiated this year was the Student Government Forum enabling any concerned student to express his viewpoint on any relevant issue.

Critically evaluating a new idea are Roy Belden, Avery Sharpe.

Presenting her views on pertinent matters of the last meeting is Secretary Patty Meffen.

School support is provided by Boys' Patrol Captain, Kevin Sinclair.

Maintaining order in the halls and cafeteria, providing assistance for teachers, and opening lockers of forgetful students are but a few of the numerous duties of the Boys' Patrol. Led by advisers Mr. Daniel Meder and Mr. Richard Annino, the Patrol perform duties necessary to the orderly operation of Classical. The assistance of the Boys' Patrol, however, is not restricted to within the walls of Classical. Their annual "Toy for Joy" drive is a worthwhile contribution to the community as a whole.

Lisa Morell pauses to think as she checks the attendance cards.

Under the guidance of their adviser, Miss Ruth Dickerman, the Girls' Patrol play a vital role in the smooth and efficient running of Classical High School. These junior and senior girls, selected for their integrity, responsibility, and scholastic achievement, assist the staffs of the administration and guidance offices by performing various duties such as filing, delivering bulletins, and running errands. The Girls' Patrol also help with the hearing and vision tests, keep order in the girls' rooms and cafeteria, and several of its members serve as receptionists at the information desk near the front door.

Classical's cheering squad led by Captain Lisa Kunhardt once again provided the sole support when the doors were closed to spectators during the basketball season. These spirited girls can be found at any athletic event cheering Classical to victory or arousing spirit during school pep rallies. To provide support for our long neglected junior varsity teams, a junior varsity squad co-captained by Peggy Murphy and Leslie MacPhaul was formed this year. They afford their teams the same enthusiasm that the regular squad is noted for.

Classical Band generates spirit

Throughout the school year the members of the Classical Band generate spirit in many ways. Under the direction of Dr. Vincent O'Keeffe, the Marching Band accompanies the cheerleaders to football games, where several new half-time routines were incorporated as usual.

Due to adverse conditions early in the fall, the Marching Band was unable to perform at the first few football games. The 'Precision Eight' was a spontaneous generation of pure Band spirit and, although it was short-lived, it was a most lauded attempt to provide half-time entertainment until the Marching Band took to the field.

A look of dismay controls Doc O'Keeffe's features as he watches one of the first marching practices.

The members of the Classical Marching Band:

as a unit and as individuals

After the hectic pace of fall, the tempo drops but not the drive. Donning suits and returning to chairs and stands, the Concert Band prepares for its season. After playing several concerts at schools throughout the area, the high point of the season is reached: the annual Spring Concert.

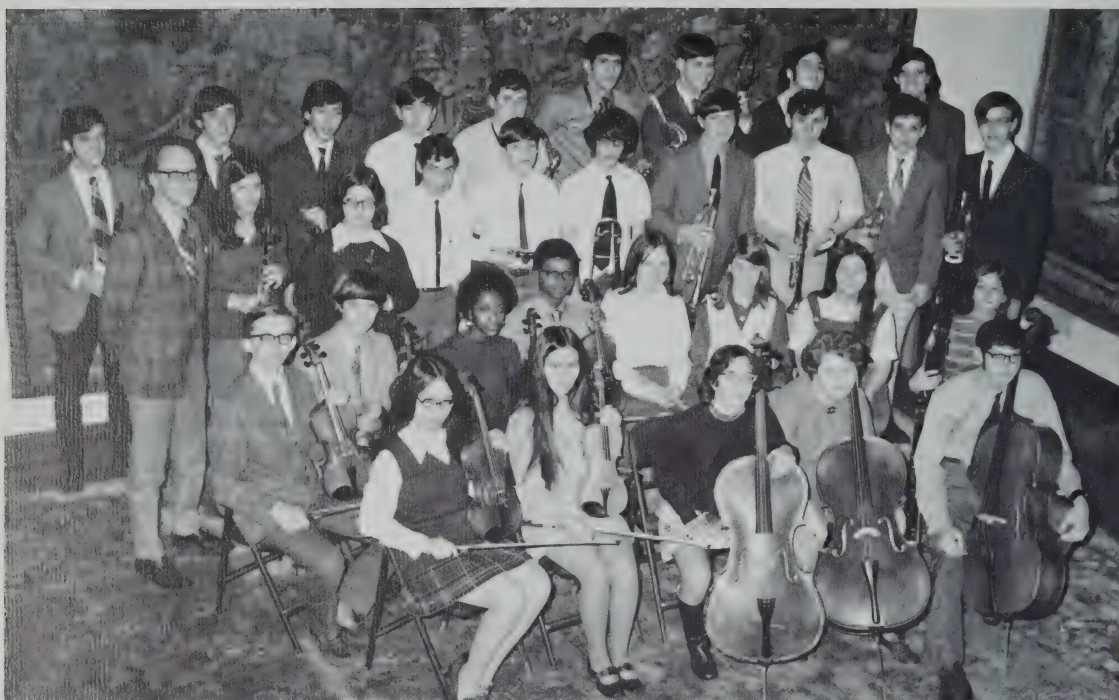

Although a smaller group, the Dance Band provides music for various dances and demonstrates its talent for the Spring Concert. The Classical Dance Band annually takes part, and unfailingly places well, in Dance Band competitions.

Leading the legions in a chorus of charges is trumpeter Thom Dearborn.

Under the direction of Mr. Robbins, the Madrigal has given performances at numerous occasions during the school year. Such performances have included participation in the Christmas concert, Spring concert, Graduation Chorus, formal concert, various assemblies including one marking the observance of Black History Week, and appearances before several clubs and community organizations. Further attesting to their excellence, a high percentage of the Madrigal members participated in the All-District chorus and later sang in the All-State chorus.

Madrigal singers perform at Eastfield Mall during the Christmas season.

The Madrigal Singers are: Front row: Laura Lezon, Ginny Ewart, Jenny Woodburn, J. P. Hennessey, Tom Cagan, Andi Cohen, Lisa Kunhardt. Row two: Tina Chones, Danila Bloom, Steve Rourke,

Individual voices

Mr. Robbins emphasizes the development of individual and group vocal skills in his work with the Boys' and Girls' choruses as well as with the Choir. Throughout the year, singers gain familiarity with a wide range of choral literature in all major styles. Besides participation in the Christmas and Spring concerts, some members have been given the opportunity to be a part of the graduation chorus. Other members of the Choir had the privilege of being selected to sing in the Western-District Chorus.

Members of the Choir are: First row: Janet Spindler, Nancy Vandermeer, Diane Kenyon, Judy Heit, Crystal Rivers, Tina Romano, William Baisden, Dave Erickson, Jesse Spencer, Debbi Young, Kathleen Martone. Language clubs promote

Cynthia Wawrzonek and Judy Pinsonneault show interest in the community by assisting elementary school teachers.

Making a pinata for students at Howard Street School are Greg Gale, Donna Curtis, Marguerite Foster, Phil Mondou, and Janet Ziff.

An important activity of the Spanish Club has always been its tutorial program for Spanish-American students at the Howard Street Elementary School. At the club's monthly meetings, students who have traveled in Spain during the summer are given an opportunity to share their experiences. Discussions are held on subjects pertaining to the culture and civilization of Spanish-speaking peoples, with particular emphasis on Spanish America.

Francis Connelly and Colleen O'Leary appear quite amused at Tom Boduch's analysis of the opening to Virgil's Aeneid.

The Latin Club is an organization of students studying Latin who wish to enhance their knowledge of Roman life and the cultural background which yielded the classical works. Under the leadership of Tom Boduch, its president, the Latin Club has been treated to various translations of the Latin classics.

awareness of culture

Judy Horowitz and Debbi Weisfogel demonstrate Israeli folk dances.

Janet Pomerantz listens attentively as Rabbi Samuels speaks to the Hebrew Club on Soviet Jewry.

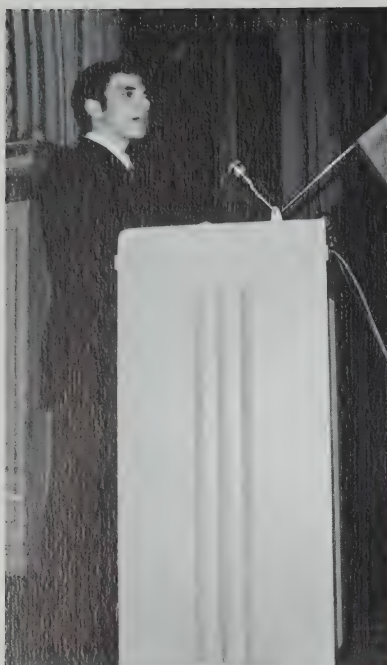

At monthly meetings, the Hebrew Club offers its members a variety of activities. These activities have included a Chanuka party, a Passover bake sale, and a lecture by Rabbi Samuels on the plight of Soviet Jewry. Israeli dances were taught at one meeting by Debbi Weisfogel, the club's vice-president.

Claude Vermette, Barbara Whiting, Lauren Jaroslow, and Judy Cagan make use of the language lab console.

The French Club consists of a group of students interested in the French culture and language. At monthly meetings, members who have traveled in France have an opportunity to relate their experiences through pictures and conversation. Students are also able to take advantage of such activities as singing and conversing in French, for which class sessions afford too little time in the opinion of true French enthusiasts.

Expression through verbal

After the battle of the debate is fought and done, judges: Former Mayor Thomas O'Connor, councilman Paul Akerman, and school committeeman Cornelius Hannigan decide who has lost and won.

Peter Hammond brings forth information which will hopefully enhance his negative team's position.

The power of the spoken word is never more evident than at a session of the Classical Senate. Whether at war or at peace, the one consistent and pressing need of all men has been to communicate their thinking verbally to other men. If at a Model Congress, a regular Senate session, or at the Tablet Debate, all Classical Senators focus on using persuasive rhetorical methods artfully and effectively. At the end of the school year, the one senator who has been most successful in speech skills is honored by having his name engraved on the marble tablets near the staircase by room 112.

Jay Moynihan articulates his position on a piece of Senate legislation, while Laura Uitto listens carefully, weighing the merits of his argument.

The honor to participate in the annual Tablet Debate is fought for during regular sessions and preliminary debates. Joel Hersh, Susan Malone, Paul Hammond, Robert Halperin, and Cynthia Wawrzonek show their own particular debating prowess during one such debate.

and written viewpoints

Gail Skvirsky leads a planning session with Ann Ciocca, Nancy Tubbs, and Shauna Deady to organize a visit to a local fine arts museum.

After all business is completed, Shauna Deady and Colleen O'Leary gather around the punch bowl, starting the festivities of the Pierides' Christmas party.

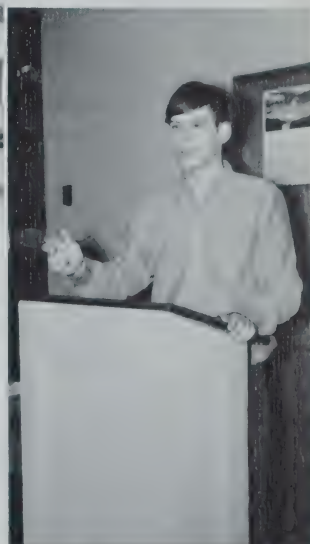

With the accent being placed on the vast field of cultural awareness and on an appreciation of the fine arts, the Pierides opens its doors to all interested Classical girls. Upholding Classical's finest traditions, the club places emphasis on a variety of cultural programs. Visits to local art and science museums, guest lectures, films, field trips, and other avenues are all taken to supplement this literary club's regular meeting discussions.

Robert Deburro shows his public speaking ability during an oratory contest.

An important aspect of the Forum is the informal panel discussions. Joel Greenspan, Paul Hammond, and Mary Ellen Kaeding discuss a topic of current national importance.

Jay Moynihan, president of the Forum, gestures to make his point.

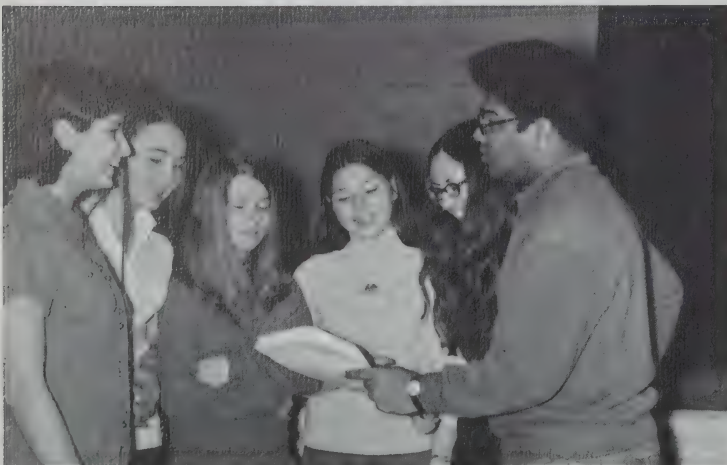

At the Classical Forum, speaking is the prime concern, whether formal or informal. The basic premise, that knowledge gained through public oratory can be applied whenever one speaks and in any situation, is restated in the strongest terms. In all ages, and especially our own, communication has largely been achieved through public speaking. Thus, the Forum provides one of Classical's major outlets for practice in this art.

In an attempt to understand and acquaint themselves with the different peoples of the world, Classical students have followed one major avenue of approach. That medium for world awareness has for many years been known as the International Relations Club. At each meeting club members are treated to interesting films, discussions, and guest lectures all dealing with the culture, life patterns, and customs of different foreign countries. This year, additional group discussion programs were offered by IRC adviser, Mrs. DiMichele, to provide a greater means for the members to achieve their ultimate goal of world understanding.

Wearing a Nigerian robe, Mr. Annino discusses Nigerian artifacts with IRC members Sandy Rigazio, Mary Sue Shea, Paula Morrell, and Thom Dearborn.

Examining a hand-made tobacco pouch are Merrie Weiner, Nancy Morgan, Marsha Sajdak, and Jay Moynihan.

Discussing arrangements for a guest speaker at an upcoming IRC meeting are Linda Sofan, Liz Palko, Beth Thayer, Eva Yates, Marsha Sajdak, and Gerry Stover.

Judging from the stymied expression on the face of Bob Martin, his opponent appears to have the match well in hand.

Mapping out their strategy in the early going are Steve Bixby and Richard Vercellone.

At weekly practice sessions, members of Classical's outstanding Chess Club had an opportunity to exhibit their chess playing prowess. The superior skills displayed by Alan Cabot, Jim Greco, Dan Thurber, Doug Reed, and Warren Dell granted them the honor of comprising the starting team for tournament play. The team gave a flawless performance during its matches while capturing first place in the Western Mass.-Conn. Valley Interscholastic Chess League. Mr. Lundrigan provided wise chessmaster-type counsel for the team as it moved on to further successes in national competition held in New York.

Waiting for his opponent's next play, Mark Warren concentrates on the game while Edward Koziol looks on.

Representing Classical's scholastic contingent this year were: Elizabeth Barnett, Bill Chernock, Richard Vercellone, and Rosanne Vercellone.

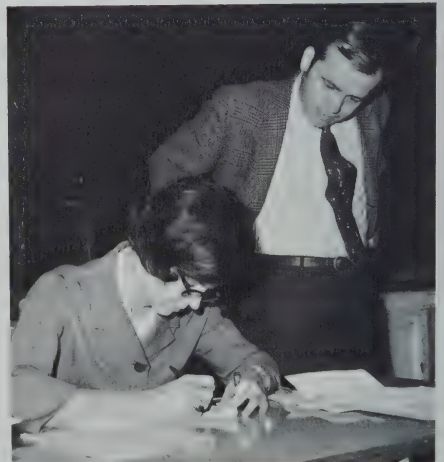

Although falling prey to a stronger and well-disciplined East Longmeadow team, Classical led by Captain Bill Chernock and guided by adviser Mr. Sullivan can still be proud of their showing.

Jimmy Winer and Pam Ellsworth work rapidly in order to beat the time limit on a tough problem.

Ranking high in mathematical ability, the members of the Mathletes participate in five competitions a year which are held at various local schools. At each meet they are confronted with five problems to be worked out in a specified time limit. With Mrs. Bale and Mr. Peck providing helpful instruction during their frequent practice sessions, this year's starting team of Phil Byrne, Allen Bale, Pam Ellsworth, Katie McKelligott, and Jim Winer has fared well.

During the meet, the judges tabulate the results of the preceding problem to determine the points accumulated by each team.

academic prowess

Students attaining either a 3.75 average by the middle of their junior year, a 3.50 average in the fall of their senior year, or a 3.25 rating at the end of their high school career have the distinction of entrance into the William C. Hill chapter of the National Honor Society.

Special privileges and honor are extended to its members. The NHS, with valuable assistance from their adviser Mrs. Bogan, sponsors many special activities including the Alumni Tea and Book Fair.

Receiving congratulations from Mr. Montagna on his induction into the National Honor Society is George Hirsch.

Students lend faculty

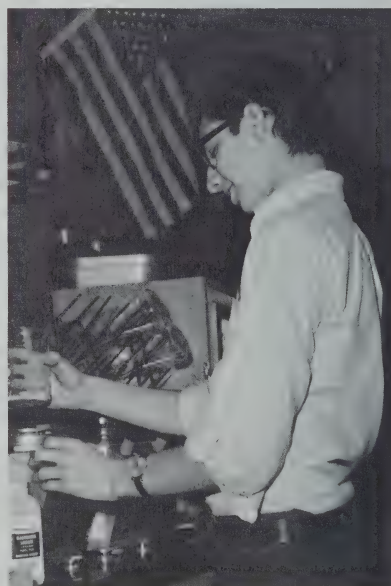

Rhonda Cato checks through the files for overdue books, as she prepares notices to remind forgetful students.

One factor which helps our librarian, Miss Brown, to keep Classical's library running smoothly is her Library Aides. These students, who generously volunteer their study time to work in the library, are instructed by Miss Brown in all areas of library procedure. Their valuable assistance ranges from shelving and checking on overdue books to delivering passes to study halls. Much credit should be given to these students for the help they give to Miss Brown and the students of Classical.

Michael Guertin mixes a solution . . .

Keeping order in the chemistry labs and mixing chemical solutions for experiments are the primary functions of Lab Aides. These future scientists help Mr. Lamoureux, their adviser, to clean up the lab during their free periods, washing test tubes and beakers, and storing lab apparatus. Lab Aides also are instructed in assisting the instructor in experiments.

Jamie Tower relaxes to some music in the stage crew room.

Movies and filmstrips can give any teachers' curriculum an added boost toward clarifying an idea or problem for his students, but this valuable teaching asset would not be possible without Classical's Audio Visual Aides. Busy during their free periods operating projectors for teachers, these students are also happy to provide assistance for the showing of a film at an after school club meeting. Mr. Peck, adviser to the AVA, makes their services available to any teachers who need assistance.

Walter Herrera, Francis Connelly, David Ward and Laurens Deliefde make sure their projector is in perfect working order.

Performing a service for not only Classical but the community, the Junior Red Cross conducts bake sales and various other drives for the benefit of local hospitals and nursing homes. Their adviser, Mrs. Beverly, hopes to have the club sponsor an orphan as well as write letters to our servicemen overseas.

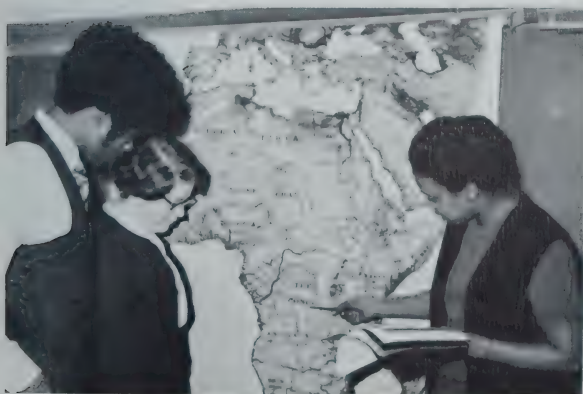

of the community

Linda Hill, Michael Frisby, James Harmon, and Laura Palmer assemble materials in the production of a Black History Week poster.

During the week of February 7, the Springfield Public School System celebrated Black History Week. Classical's involvement included an assembly, book fair, and television appearances by students. Many displays were in evidence throughout the halls and rooms of the school. The success of Black History Week was appreciated by all who were a part of it or were witness to it.

Shirley Clemmons, Debbie Cohen, and Ralph Jackson work on their project.

Students are aware

Classical students, James Hoar, Brian Hackett, and Jay Moynihan listen to Mr. Donald Reichert's explanation of various Oriental artifacts. Members of Culture Vultures meet regularly and visit the George Walter Vincent Smith Museum. The purpose of Culture Vultures is to supplement the Classical curriculum with a cultural knowledge not obtainable in most high school classrooms.

Mr. Donald Reichart explains the intricate weaving involved in the production of Oriental rugs as Robert Deburro, Jon Ketchum, Meredith Wessman, and Elizabeth Harrington listen attentively.

of expanding horizons

The Classical History Club, under the guidance of Mr. Stephen LeClair, was initiated by a group of students interested in history. The club members meet regularly to view films and discuss places of historic interest. Various field trips are also planned for the year. In this picture Mr. LeClair develops a point as Carla Rosati, Susan Morisi and Debbie Boudreau listen.

Members of the Drama Club, Joanne Knee, Veronica Dyson, Laura Lezon and Susane Malone rehearse a scene from "The Ninety-Nine Thousand Dollar Answer." The Drama Club, under the direction of Mr. William Lavin, gain experience in the production of a play and learn about the workings of the theatre. During the school year, club activities include visits to local theatres. A spring play is the highlight of their year's work.

Bulldogs avenge early defeats

Classical's potent offense digs in against East Longmeadow's Spartans en route to a hard fought 14-6 Bulldog victory.

Mark Mullin turns the corner and heads down-field for a big gain.

Afforded some good protection, quarterback Pat Filiault fades back to pass.

The 1970 Classical Bulldogs, rebounding from two early-season setbacks, went on to post a highly respectable 7-2 record. Coach Archie Cataldi, in his second year directing the squad, commended his entire team for their fine showing and also noted the hustle which they displayed on the field throughout the season. Four gridmen, punter Wayne Wray, halfback Greg Hall, guard Doug Berkey, and tackle Bill Fiore, placed on the All-Western Mass. team, while eleven other players achieved All-City recognition.

After dropping a 19-12 heartbreaker to South Hadley in the home opener, the Bulldogs suffered an even more humiliating 20-0 whitewash before a potent Minnechaug squad. However, the next two weeks saw them recover to whip arch rival Longmeadow 20-2 and to blast Trade 32-0. From then on the team seemed to gain momentum. They went on to tackle seven consecutive triumphs, outscoring opponents 178-32 over the stretch, while restoring faith in the renown Classical attack.

Smooth-running Gerry Gavin sweeps around his blocking in action taken during the Classical-Northampton game.

Moving in to administer a crushing tackle is Classical's Gary Berte.

This long pass just eluded the outstretched arms of receiver Wayne Wray.

All-Western Mass. selectee, Greg Hall, was a standout in the Bulldog backfield all season.

Tourney in first round

Classical's 1970 soccer team had a very good season with a final record of seven wins, three losses, and two ties. The Bulldogs also displayed a good showing in the Interschool League achieving a 5-1-2 record. In Western Mass. competition the Bulldogs were defeated in the first match with Minnechaug in a 3-2 battle. The team, led by co-captains Bruce Eggleston and Mike Ellis, began the season with a discouraging loss against Longmeadow but picked up a tie and then two victories over Agawam and Commerce.

Coach Vaughn said outstanding seniors were Bill Keefe, John Yates, Mike Ellis, and Bruce Eggleston. He also looks forward to next season with Tom Dyjak, Dave Ferioli, Mark Mullan, and Johnny Dieters.

Bill Keefe fights to trap the ball.

Moe Murphy follows through on a corner kick.

Mike Ellis, determined to score, dribbles downfield.

Harriers have frustrating season

Bulldogs get in shape before the meet.

"And they're off!"

The Cross-Country team, coached by Mr. Neil Yesu, took a bad turn this year with a final varsity record of one win and six losses. The victory was in a close meet with Chicopee (27-28). Meets with Agawam and Ludlow were within a few points of triumph. In the Western Mass. competition, the varsity placed fifteenth out of sixteen; however, the J.V. team came in eighth out of twenty-seven teams. Consistently good pacers were Bob Zancan, Ed Karcmarczyk, Glenn Fell, Alex Friedman, and Mike Johnson.

The watch is stopped by Coach Yesu as Mike Barboza crosses the line.

John Bonatakis is completely fatigued after a long run.

J.V. crew fares better than Varsity

Classical oar-benders pull ahead as Tech struggles to no avail.

The Classical Crew team, often plagued by poor dock conditions, won only one meet against their rival, Tech. The junior varsity team, however, seemed to shape up fairly quickly and consequently went undefeated against Tech. The team was coached by Otto Wolff, and captains were Pete Foresteire and David Vinik.

Mr. Wolff still maintains that a strict fall practice schedule helps to fortify the team, gives freshmen a chance to learn the basics, and looks forward to next season.

Pressing the shell are Stan Cataldo, Bill Dugan, Co-Captain Taki Megas, Sherman Matzko, Carl Dziok, Barry Gruber, Allan Taylor, Steve Charles, Mark Rademacher and Coxwain Bruce Later.

Pucksters use balanced attack

Steve Ryan cuts in, fires, and . . . SCORES! This picture-play goal was tallied in action during the Classical-Commerce game.

Although not capturing the Berry Division championship this season, the pucksters made a fine showing of 11-3-2, good for a second place finish. The second place enabled the Bulldogs to qualify for the Western Mass. championship.

Classical's offense again led the league in scoring with a total of 96 goals in 16 games. Bill Keefe paced all Bulldog scorers with 15 goals and 26 assists, which also won him the Berry Division scoring championship. Steve Ryan, Paul Ziter, and Mike Hespelt were also high scoring forwards placing in the top ten of Berry Division scoring. Freshman Mike Badger and Junior Mike Zanetti were also productive scorers. The combined efforts of Tom Sweeney, Mike Ellis, Tom Skelly, and Mike McKillop, along with goal tender Dave Ferioli, helped Classical's defense rate tops in their division with an allowance of only 26 goals. While allowing the fewest goals, the defense also had good scorers in Ellis and Sweeney.

to score successful season

Bulldog Coach Jim Carlin keeps a watchful eye on the action.

High-scoring forward Steve Ryan cleverly "dekes" an opponent as he carries out of his zone.

Billy Keefe hustles back to clear a loose puck from in front of the Bulldog net.

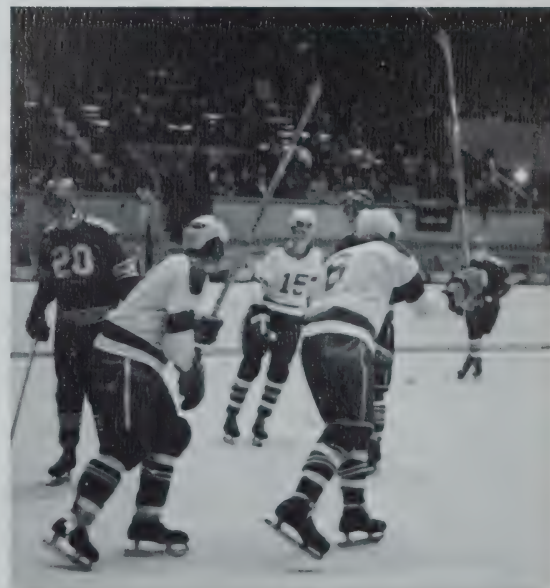

At right, Keefe and Ziter raise their sticks in victory following the Bulldog tally.

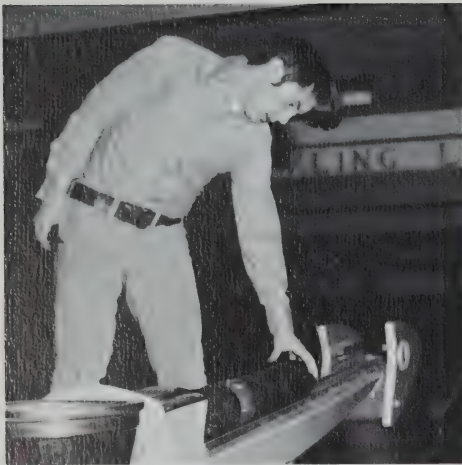

Positioning himself perfectly outside the crease, Paul Ziter tips in a long shot from the point.

Classical net-minder Dave Ferioli cuts down the angle beautifully and makes a save from in close.

Bowlers again on top

Steve Grossman chooses a ball that will give him a strike.

Jeff Atkins smoothly executes his bowling form.

Members of the varsity bowling team were: (kneeling) Steve Grossman and Frank Nitri; (standing) Larry DiCarlo, Jeff Atkins, and Wayne Maynard.

Coach Jermakian, Jeff Atkins and Wayne Maynard intently watch the opponent's game.

The bowling team, coached by Armen Jermakian, had an excellent season and finished with a record of 60 wins and only 4 losses. With this record, the Bulldogs wrapped up the Inter-school league, being city champs for the fifth consecutive year. Since the bowlers won both rounds I and II, there was no need of a playoff for the title. The team's captain, Jeff Atkins, and junior Larry DiCarlo were on top in the league with the highest averages.

Grapplers have encouraging season

The wrestlers recorded their best season in years this winter, with seven victories and four losses. The team's great success was attributed to outstanding wrestlers Steve Rome, a senior, and freshman Dennis Fenton. Rome was also co-captain along with Avery Sharpe. Rome and Fenton both took first place in Western Mass. in their respective classes, and Rome went on to finish third in the State finals. Other high scorers in Western Mass. were Sharpe, Spencer Scheer, and Anthony Cioccia.

Anthony Cioccia has his opponent at an advantage at this point.

Steve easily pins his opponent.

Larry Pandoli is on even terms with the competition.

Bulldogs start fast but

Familiar sights at many Bulldog games were exciting scoring plays, such as the penetrating hook shot at right, by outstanding senior guard Jerry Gavin.

Leroy Goodwin stops and pops from the top of the key.

Classical's 1970-71 hoopsters, starting off strong by winning seven of their first nine games, fell victim to a late season slump and finished with an 11-8 record. Under Coach Dan Meder, the Bulldogs displayed a well-executed fast break that featured sharpshooters Gerry Gavin, Corky Lewis, and Jimmy Spears, combined with a good overall team effort.

The Bulldogs opened with an exciting 65-62 win at Chicopee Comprehensive. Although they led throughout the game, a Classical victory wasn't certain until Mel Federico came off the bench to hit two free throws with fifteen seconds remaining. Gavin paced the Bulldogs with 25 points. The squad then went on to post three consecutive triumphs, upending Westfield 66-62, torpedoing Chicopee 64-54, and nipping Holyoke Catholic in a 76-74 thriller. The cagers suffered their first setback of the season, a 77-43 drubbing by Drury, in a game which saw the Bulldog's zone defense fall victim to Drury's hot outside shooting. Following a hard-fought 64-60 loss to Taconic Regional, Classical once again regained its winning ways as it caged the Tech Tigers, 51-45 at Tech. Highlights of the Bulldog's Interschool League competition included an exciting 82-80 victory over Commerce on a Lewis basket with only 5 seconds remaining and a 57-48 scuttling of Cathedral.

Jamie LaRochelle, exhibiting the butterfly, surpasses his opponents with ease.

Keith Moses swims the crawl for a victory in the 400.

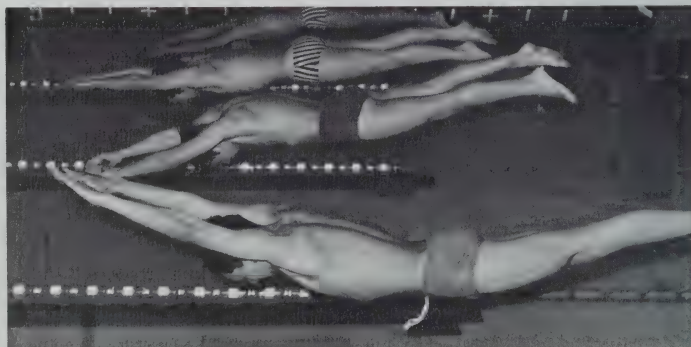

The swim team, led by tri-captains Bruce Eggleston, Peter LaRochelle, and Gary Rappaport and coached by Otto Wolff, had a final record of 10 wins and 4 losses. However, having no losses in city meets, they again took the City Crown with no problems. The men also took fourth place in Western Mass. competition, and placed ninth in the State meet. High points of the Western Mass. meet were Jamie LaRochelle's first place in the butterfly, and Peter LaRochelle's third place in the IM and breast stroke events. Other swimmers noted for their speed were seniors Eggleston, Rappaport, and Bill Dugan, and juniors Keith Moses and Johnny Dieters. Diving for the team was freshman David McKay.

John Deiters and Keith Moses are off on an even start with their opponents.

Track team has discouraging season

Brian Hackett gains on his teammate, David Finch, while jumping the hurdle.

Peter LaRochelle makes his approach in the javelin throw.

The track team, finishing third in city competition, was led by co-captains Bruce Eggleston and Gerry Gavin. Eggleston was outstanding in the 880-yard run, while Gavin specialized in the 100, the high jump, and the long jump. Others who stood out in competition on the field were Peter LaRochelle in the javelin throw, Bruce Guzowski in the discus event, Mark Watson in the quarter-mile, and Alex Friedman in both the one and two-mile runs.

Although the Bulldogs were edged out of a victory with Tech, they were severely beaten by Cathedral. However, the squad was consoled by triumphs over Commerce and Trade.

Mark Greenberg spots, as Peter LaRochelle executes his pole-vault.

Alex Friedman, Peter LaRochelle, Bruce Eggleston, Dave Mantoni, Mark Greenberg, Brian Hackett, Paul Bolduc, John Bonatakis, and Bruce Guzowski.

Golfers have disappointing season

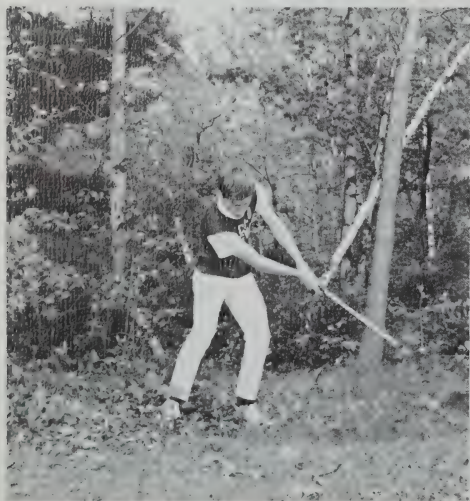

Members of the 1970 Classical golf team include: (standing) Coach Lundrigan, Stanley Rodak, Shark Tuttle, Bob Marchese, Mike Hespelt and Billy Keefe; (kneeling) Jack Teranni, Dave Demos, Doug Reed, Richard Garvin, and David Garson.

Scott Bridgeman displays form off the tee as team mate Billy Keefe looks on.

Billy Keefe chips his way out of trouble.

The golf team suffered through a frustrating season of no wins and eight losses. However, the Bulldogs came close to upsetting Cathedral, a well-stacked team, and came within a half point of toppling West Springfield, the State Championship team. Among the top golfers were Mike Hespelt, Stan Rodak, and Billy Keefe, who went on to the state match. Promising freshmen cited for varsity were Shark Tuttle and Dave Demos.

Mike Hespelt ponders his next shot.

Carefully lining up an important shot is Stan Rodak.

Bulldogs put up vain struggle

Awaiting a part in the action is Lee Skrzypek while Mitch Boykan returns an opponent's serve.

Jim Widland approaches the ball in preparation for a backhand return.

John Yates displays good form on a tough backhand shot.

The Classical netmen struggled through a fair 6-10 season this year. The team swept matches against Tech and Palmer, but had trouble against stiff competition served up by Cathedral and Longmeadow. Despite this, they managed to maintain a .500 average throughout the better part of the season. A four-game winless streak at the end of the season ended any hopes to place the team in a Western Mass. Tournament showing. The team boasted solid singles' performances by Jimmy Widland (6-10), John Yates (6-9), and Bob Goodlatte (8-7). Top doubles team was Dell-Gurka, who finished with a 9-7 record.

Following through on a strong serve is Mitch Boykan.

The 1970 Classical netmen were: (standing) Lee Skrzypek, Jim Widland, Mitch Boykan, Tom Kirk and Coach Averill. Kneeling are: John Yates, Warren Dell and Mike Gurka.

Baseball team measures

Dave Liberty hurls in the first pitch.

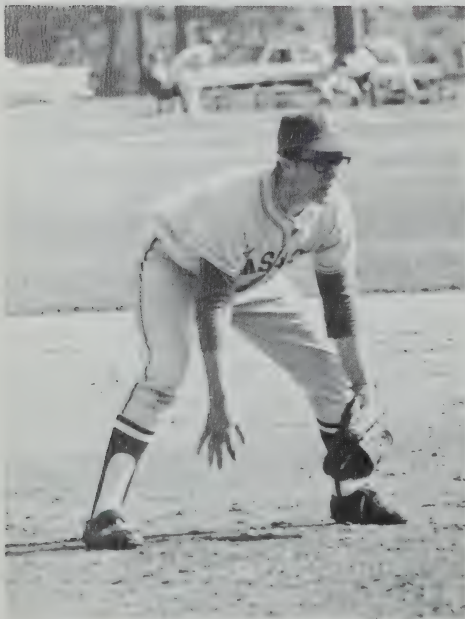

The 1970 Classical baseball team, featuring strong front-line pitching and a balanced hitting attack, closed out the season with a 9-7 record, finishing 4-4 in Interschool competition. Coach Smith termed his team's overall performance as satisfying, despite some disappointing games against an always tough Tech team. The Bulldog infield featured All-City short-

up to strong competition

Scott Herd warms up with a few catches.

On deck is Dave Cawley taking a few determined practice swings.

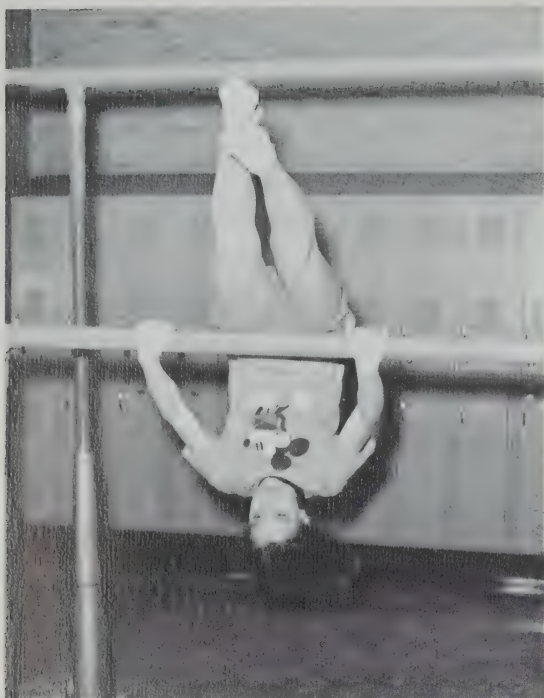

Steve Ryan checks his footing before the delivery of a pitch.

Dave Francoeur drives out a long one for a base hit.

Apparatus adds

A back hip circle, performed by Ann Demasi, is one of the more difficult ways to mount the uneven bars.

Janet Davenport displays her gymnastic talents with a cartwheel.

Apparatus not only requires determined effort and self-confidence but also gives enjoyment to many Classical girls. Many girls who thought they could never perform some of the more difficult stunts discover that with faithful practice these stunts soon become second nature.

Bonnie Milette does the splits on the rings with great determination.

variety to gym classes

With perfect form Melissa Dane does a difficult straddle vault over the horse.

After mastering the once difficult routine they move on to even more involved activities. The girls participating in apparatus benefit from the exercise gained and also from the self-satisfaction of accomplishment.

Once again Janet Davenport shows her ability as she goes into a headspring off the horse.

Doreen Garvin performs a backflip on the trampoline while being coached by Mrs. Desrochers and onlookers.

All sports require

Girls who participated in the Senior Lifesaving class are front row: Nancy Perkins, Janice Smith. Back row: Diane Ruggere, Noreen Roberts, Lori Ziff, Debbie White. Mrs. Desrochers directed the program and went with the girls once a week after school to the Kennedy Jr. High School pool. There, they were taught the various methods of lifesaving and on completing the course were rewarded with a certificate.

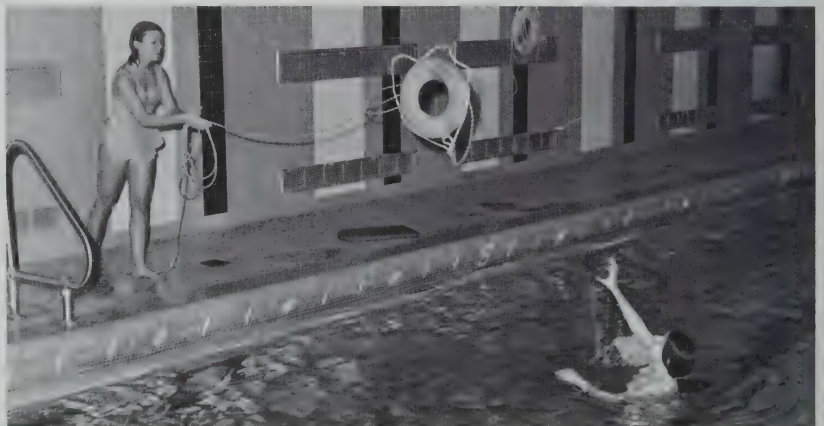

Debbie White and Noreen Roberts demonstrate one of the correct methods of lifesaving.

Diane Ruggere goes into a graceful dive.

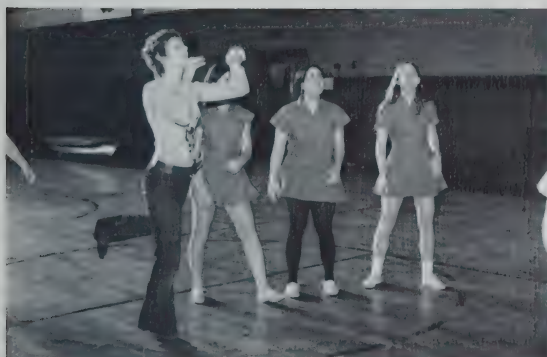

Nancy Perkins learns to save her victim and fellow student, Debbie White, without even getting her feet wet.

self-confidence and skill

Once a week after school, Miss Rosenak offered a course in dry-land skiing. This ski school was started for novice to intermediate skiers in order to acquaint them with ski equipment, as well as the sport. Members were Marcia Sadjak, Beth Thayer, Irene Ellert, Gail Walker, Debbie Dutton, Nancy Perkins, and Mimi Newman.

Melissa Dane shoots for a basket while Debbie Damasi, Helen Michaels, and Sherri Gluckman watch for the outcome.

Ann Damasi dribbles down the court to a basket with her sister Debbie close behind.
